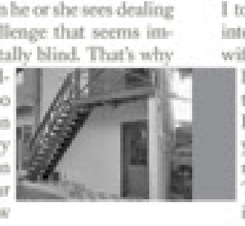
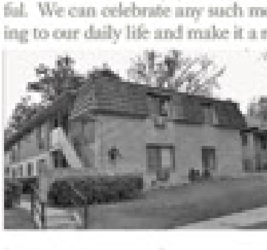
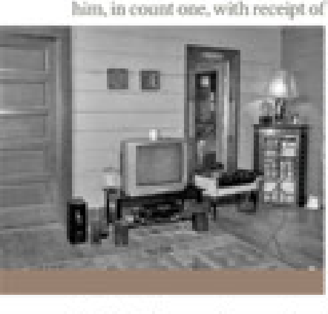
Sunni militants fighting under the banner of Al Qaeda appeared to make gains across Anbar Province on Saturday, using snipers and rocket-propelled grenades in heavy street fighting as they secured nearly full control of Falluja and captured the strategic town Karma. Government forces and the tribal militias fighting with them seemed unable to resist the militants advances. My humble words for my 71st birthday celebration on 3 Kings Day. i've been asked many times how i celebrate my birthday. Since i celebrate every day i wake up alive that for me is the best way i can answer the question regarding the celebration of my birthday. At my age i believe i've lived much longer than i had expected to live. And that's an excellent reason why i should celebrate every day i wake up, look up at the sky to see if there are stars or the moon out and feel the palpitation of my heart to confirm that i'm alive for real. The reaction to my allergies can make me aware that i'm alive, but that's something i don't really like to use because it can affect my desire to celebrate life.





i believe we should celebrate every day just for having awoken. When i've this idea with people they have question it. My response is that we should pay attention to the relativity of the human destiny. Because it doesn't matter how miserable one feels and how bad one thinks conditions are, the fact remains one is alive. And when one feels miserable all one has to do is to look around and one will see another person in worse conditions doing what might look impossible and facing the challenge without complaining. If one feels miserable because he or she lost an eye the person he or she sees dealing with the challenge that seems impossible is totally blind. That's why we should always take into consideration the relativity of the human destiny. When we start a new year or the calendar is telling us a new year has started we should look at it as a chance to complete what we have not been able to accomplish in the past. When we face a crisis we should look at it as an opportunity to deal with it and to find a solution. It doesn't matter where we are. For example, when the earthquake devastated Mexico City and there was a major crisis we came up with the idea to raise funds from the prison population in order to give a hand to the victims of the earthquake. We talked to the staff and the idea was accepted. We were allowed to set up tables and get the prisoners to sign a form to have the money discounted from their funds. Within two hours we had raised over five thousand dollars. At first we had no idea how to help the victims. But after discussing the issue we were able to come up with a solution. We were able to do what for others seemed impossible. Celebrate life and not the commodification of it. We can share and enjoy the act of and make it meaningful. We can celebrate any such moment and give meaning to our daily life and make it a real important cultural event. Life is an act of giving and receiving. But when the sharing of gifts is commodified it becomes another act of consumerism and our culture is the one that suffers its consequences. Any moment we celebrate our culture we are helping to pass it on to future generations and to strengthened it. But if we allow it to become an act of consumerism we are contributing to its vulgarization and its demise. Let's celebrate 3 pass it on to future generations and to strengthened it. But if we allow it to become an act of consumerism we are contributing to its vulgarization and its demise. Let's celebrate 3 Kings Day and enjoy it to the utmost. If we believe a better and more just world is possible, we don't have to go to a far away place in the globe to make our contribution to such a lofty cause. We can do it right where we live. But we have to be willing to roll up our sleeves and do the hard work. Words are important, but it's the work that bears fruits. And if we learn one lesson in life that's worthwhile holding on and passing it on is that the only thing that's impossible is that that doesn't get done. It was Madeba who said that any problem us humans create have a solution. If there is a poverty problem it can be solved if we tackle it. Let's emulate Madeba's example. Let's dare to struggle. let's dare to win. Talk the talk and walk the walk. i leave you with a big hug with much love. Take care, abrazos, Oscar Lopez Rivera Anarchism is part of a broader range of libertarian socialist thought and action that includes the practical achievements of revolutionary Spain in 1936; reaches further to worker-owned enterprises spreading today in the American rust belt, in northern Mexico, in Egypt, and many other countries, most extensively in the Basque country in Spain; and encompasses the many cooperative movements around the world and a good part of feminist and civil and human rights initiatives. This broad tendency in human development seeks to identify structures of hierarchy, authority and domination that constrain human development, and then subject them to a very reasonable challenge: Justify yourself. A former Columbia, Illinois resident pled guilty on January 10, 2014, to a two-count indictment charging him, in count one, with receipt of visual depictions of minors engaged in sexually explicit conduct, in violation of Title 18, United States Code, Section 2252(a)(2); and, in count two, with possession of visual depictions of minors engaged in sexually explicit conduct, in violation of Title 18, United States Code, Section 2252(a)(4)(B), the United States Attorney for the Southern District of Illinois, Stephen R. Wigginton, announced today. Neil E. Purdy, 29, formerly of Columbia, Illinois, faces a term of imprisonment of not less than five but not more than 20 years, a fine up to $250,000, and a term of supervised release of five years to life on count one; and a term of imprisonment of not more than 10 years, a fine up to $250,000, and a term of supervised release of five years to life on count two. In addition, upon his release from prison, Purdy must register as a sex offender. Sentencing is scheduled for May 16, 2014, in East St. Louis, Illinois. Purdy has been held without bond since his initial appearance on April 26, 2013.



The investigation began on February 7, 2012, when an individual contacted the Columbia Police Department to report that the defendant molested his/her 14-year-old child. He/she also told the Columbia police that he/she saw the defendant "Google" the phrase, "where can I find really young porn." He/she said that, when he/she asked the defendant, "How long have you had this little problem?" Purdy responded, "About three years." On February 16, 2012, Purdy, a member of the U.S. Navy Reserve with top secret clearance, admitted to Columbia the number of hunger strikers in Guantanamo has doubled since the final set of official figures was released by the US authorities on December 2 2013. The report, compiled by human rights charity Reprieve, uses prisoner testimony to reveal that 33 men detained in Guantanamo are on hunger strike, with 16 being force fed. The Joint Task Force at Guantanamo, which runs the prison, announced in December of 2013 that they would no longer release official figures of those on hunger strike because they did not want to 'further their protests'. The report also reveals that authorities at the prison are punishing those on hunger strike by sending them to the strictest of the camps, "Camp V Echo". One detainee described his experiences there to his lawyer at Reprieve: "My cell in the dreadful Camp V Echo is constructed in a strange manner. It is designed to torture the person who is held there. All the surfaces made of steel. The bed is steel. The walls are steel. The floor is steel. The ceiling is steel. There is no toilet, but the hole in the ground is made of steel." British resident Shaker Aamer, who remains imprisoned despite having been cleared by both the Bush and Obama administrations, said: "[I was] strapped to the bed for 24 hours except to use the toilet. The [force-feeding] tube was in 24 hours a day. We would be fed for 30-40 minutes each time, with Ensure cans, two cans, three times a day. Some of the prisoners became zombies, as if they were already dead. I dropped weight to 130 pounds. I told the doctors, 'I want to die peacefully. I want no intervention.' But they refused this." Mr Aamer's British wife and four British children, the youngest of whom he has never met, live in London. British Prime Minister David Cameron has raised his case directly with President Obama, yet Mr Aamer remains imprisoned. There is an ongoing police investigation into Mr Aamer's treatment at the hands of British and US officials. 155 men are still detained in Guantanamo Bay, 77 of who have been cleared for release. Yesterday (Saturday) marked the twelfth anniversary of the first arrival of prisoners at the detention camp. Of the 779 men known to have been held there 624 have been released. More prisoners have died than have been put on trial. In an endlessly mutating world of media forms, scholars, creative practitioners and professionals in a variety of fields need to understand the ways in which media transforms and dissolves boundaries among disciplines and creates new forms of knowledge and cultural production. The Master of Arts (M.A.) in Media Studies provides students with the conceptual and practical tools necessary to prepare themselves to engage some of the fundamental challenges and complexities of our times. The program interrogates the social, practical, economic, political and theoretical stakes of mediation considered in the widest possible sense, encompassing more traditional approaches to the study of media (print, film, photography, audio and television), in conjunction with approaches that address the massive shifts produced by the computer and internet including gaming and social media Students will benefit from an academic environment shaped not only by theorists and critics, but also by distinguished practitioners of the forms being studied. Students study and work among theorists, artists and designers and are taught by faculty-practitioners. Our courses are small, intensive, seminars taught exclusively by professors. The program is 30 credits and can be completed in threesemesters. Among the core requirements are (1) six credit hours of courses

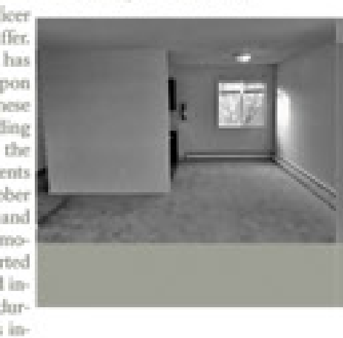
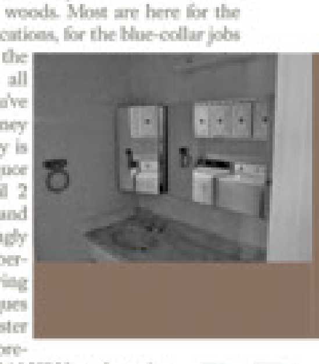
An individual who robbed a bank yesterday morning in Phoenix and who later was shot and killed in an exchange of gunfire with a Phoenix police detective has been identified as the same individual responsible for the attempted bank robbery in Atlanta, the robbery of the BancorpSouth in Tupelo, the shooting of Tupelo Police Officer Joseph Edward Maher, and the murder of Tupelo Police Officer Kevin "Gale" Stauffer. This identification has been made based upon similarities between these bank robberies, including the clothing worn by the bank robber, statements made by the bank robber during the robberies, and the robber's overall modus operandi, supported by other evidence and information collected during the course of this investigation. Additionally, cell phone records obtained via court order indicated that this individual's phone was in Atlanta, Tupelo, and Phoenix when the bank robberies were committed.





Not many people come to Fort McMurray, the notorious Alberta boom town on the edge of one of the world's largest industrial developments, to commune with the great northern woods. Most are here for the overtime, for the paid vacations, for the blue-collar jobs that pay six figures, for the work. This means that all of the bad things you've heard about Fort McMoney are true: the traffic really is murderous, there are liquor stores (many open until 2 a.m.) in every strip mall, and the place has a depressingly large population of desperately lonely guys blowing ridiculously fat paycheques on steroids, tattoos, monster trucks, and peelers. Tammy Dickinson, United States Attorney for the Western District of Missouri, announced that a Nixa, Missouri man was sentenced in federal court today for receiving and distributing child pornography over the Internet. Charles Williams, 28, of Nixa, was sentenced by U.S. District Judge Brian C. Wimes to 10 years and 10 months in federal prison without parole. Williams, who pleaded guilty on August 7, 2013, admitted that he used peer-to-peer file-sharing programs on two laptop computers to download and distribute dozens of videos and photos of child pornography over the Internet from April 9 to September 27, 2011.

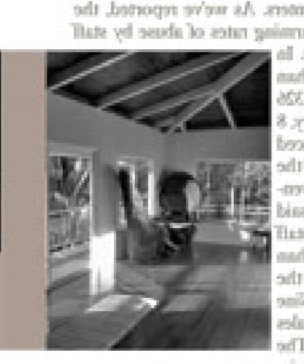
A Nixa police officer used a peer-to-peer file-sharing program to connect to Williams' computer over the Internet. The officer located child pornography on the computer and obtained a search warrant for Williams' residence. Officers executed the search warrant on September 27, 2011 and seized two laptop computers, two cameras, two videogame consoles, 115 CDs/DVDs, and a VHS tape. Among the files discovered on one of the laptop computers was a video of a 4- to 5-year-old child being raped by an adult. Williams was arrested on September 27, 2011.

Investigators conducted an examination of Williams' computers and found 52 incomplete or partially downloaded videos of child pornography, 29 saved videos of child pornography, eight videos of child pornography in the recycle bin, and 13 images of child pornography.



This case was prosecuted by Assistant U.S. Attorney Randall D. Eggert. It was investigated by the FBI and the Nixa Police Department. Last week, the Justice Department convened hearings under the Prison Rape Elimination Act to examine the prevalence of rape and sexual abuse in the nation's prisons and juvenile detention centers. As we've reported, the department has found alarming rates of abuse by staff on youngsters in custody. In a 2013 survey of more than 8,700 juveniles housed in 326 facilities across the country, 8 percent said they experienced sex abuse at the hands of the staff supervising them. Twenty percent of those who said they were victimized by staff said it happened on more than 10 occasions. But perhaps the most surprising finding: Nine out of 10 victims were males abused by female staffers. The prison rape elimination legislation first passed in 2003, but it then took the Justice Department nearly 10 years to study the issue and release rules for prisons and juvenile detention centers to implement. My name is Mr. Richard Blanc, I am the Credit Account Manager with Access Bank Limited Benin Republic in West Africa Region. I have an obscured business Transaction I wish to discuss and handle with you, if only you can give it a little attention. BRIEF DETAIL OF TRANSACTION: It involves moving an Excess Maximum Returned Capital Profit (EMRCP) of 1.2% to any of your Overseas bank account, and commence a standard Investment.

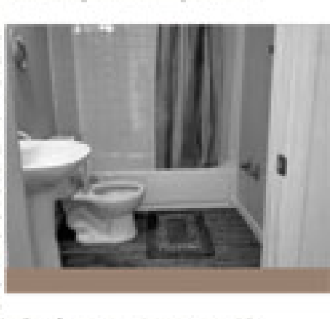
In Access Bank Limited, We have well over 158 Corporate Investors, Locally and Internationally, who invested their Capital Funds in our bank, and those Capital Invested Funds are being managed and administered by my office. The Capital Invested Funds has a value of over US$22Billion net. This Value is been used for Trading in Stock Market, Crude Oil business and Lending with Profit Returns. At Every end of year, each Corporate Investor is entitled to receive a 100% Dividend/Interest benefits of any Amount invested . However, Access Bank Limited has a Targeted Capital Profit of 20% in every year, but in the year 2012, my office made an over targeted profit to the tune of 21.2%, which 20% targeted profit was reported and submitted to the management. Since 2012 i have deposited and placed the over-accrude profit of 1.2% which has value of US$1.5Million in a suspense account until date.

With all due respect, I seek your concept and permission to present you to our bank as one of our bank foreign investors who has not receive his 2012 dividend benefit, so that our bank will transfer this over maximum profit of 1.2% (US$1.5Million) to your nominated bank account, for both of us to share among ourselves. Note, after handling this project successfully, you will get 50% of the total fund and 50% for me.



The South African sugar giant Illovo has 6159 hectares of sugarcane in Malawi, where it is a monopoly with an annual production of 2.8 million metric tonnes of sugar. The company denies persistent claims that it has grabbed land from smallholder farmers "Everybody loves Illovo" is the common slogan emblazoned on millions of sugar packets sold daily by Illovo Sugar (Malawi) Limited, the country's sole producer. However, for subsistence farmers at Kachibandi, Mwale, Kaziling and Kalimakhola at Dwangwa about 250 kilometres from Malawi's Capital City, Lilongwe, the slogan is a bitter-sweet fallacy. "I was dispossessed of my two and half hectares - my only source of livelihood," said farmer Joseph Mwale. "Now, I am suffering because I have to work in other people's farms to make ends meet." At 38, Mwale looks lost and confused as he narrates details of the evictions. There is fear, hatred and resignation that Malawi's justice system, and the overall structure of land administration favours the rich at the expense of the poor. "I used to grow maize, cassava, rice and beans but my crops were uprooted; my house

Corporations and the rich should not have escaped taxation in the first place because they helped to cause the crisis; they enriched themselves the most in the decades before the crisis; and they can best afford to pay to overcome the crisis. Had they been taxed to pay for stimulus and bailout, no need would have arisen for borrowing or austerity.

You are in a valley in the forest beside a stream tumbling along a rocky bed.

You can hardly turn on the television or open a newspaper without hearing about the nation's impressive, much celebrated housing recovery. Home prices are rising! New construction has started! The crisis is over! Yet beneath the fanfare, a whole new get-rich-quick scheme is brewing.

Over the last year and a half, Wall Street hedge funds and private equity firms have quietly amassed an unprecedented rental empire, snapping up Queen Anne Victorians in Atlanta, brick-faced bungalows in Chicago, Spanish revivals in Phoenix. In total, these deep-pocketed investors have bought more than 200,000 cheap, mostly foreclosed houses in cities hardest hit by the economic meltdown.

Wall Street's foreclosure crisis, which began in late 2007 and forced more than 10 million people from their homes, has created a paradoxical problem. Millions of evicted Americans need a safe place to live, even as millions of vacant, bank-owned houses are blighting neighborhoods and spurring a rise in crime. Lucky for us, Wall Street has devised a solution: It's going to rent these foreclosed houses back to us. In the process, it's devised a new form of securitization that could cause this whole plan to blow up -- again.

Since the buying frenzy began, no company has picked up more houses than the Blackstone Group, the largest private equity firm in the world. Using a subsidiary company, Invitation Homes, Blackstone has grabbed houses at foreclosure auctions, through local brokers, and in bulk purchases directly from banks the same way a regular person might stock up on toilet paper from Costco.

Drink your chocolate, eat your dessert, then smash your plate afterwards. And you dont have to clean up. The tradition is said to have its roots in pre-Colombian tradition which warranted that all of ones personal belongings should be destroyed every 52 years.

The entire city is one big festival during Christmas, with an open air market in the already bustling zocalo, with food stands, carnival rides, and artisan crafts.

Inspired by the Saudi Wahabist interpretation of Islam - ascetic, extreme, exclusive and violent - Al Qaeda feeds on despair rather than hope. It operates like the mafia, growing rich by terrifying wealthy Arabs into paying protection money. It transformed traditional Somali society by killing local imams or forcing them to abandon their traditional Sufi practices and Somali customs. For example, traditionally Somali women dressed in colourful flowing robes and played prominent social roles. Now they are dressed head to toe in black, dark brown or green and excluded from decision-making and debate.

But in places of extreme injustice you can see why such a millenarian religion might flourish. Somalia has had no government since the late 1980s and has been abandoned by the world from 1995 when the Americans fled and refused to fund the UN force too. Since then the south has been at war, there has been no state, little education or development, permanent insecurity and starvation. Millions have fled and a vast refugee camp, Dadaab, with almost a million inhabitants, has grown up on the Kenyan border.

Hi,

I am Thompson Cole the newly appointed United Nations Inspection Agent in JFK Airport New York. During our Investigation, we discovered An abandoned shipment on your name through a Diplomat from London. which was transferred to our facility here in JF Kennedy Airport and when scanned it revealed an undisclosed sum of money in a Metal Trunk Box weighing approximately 55kg each.

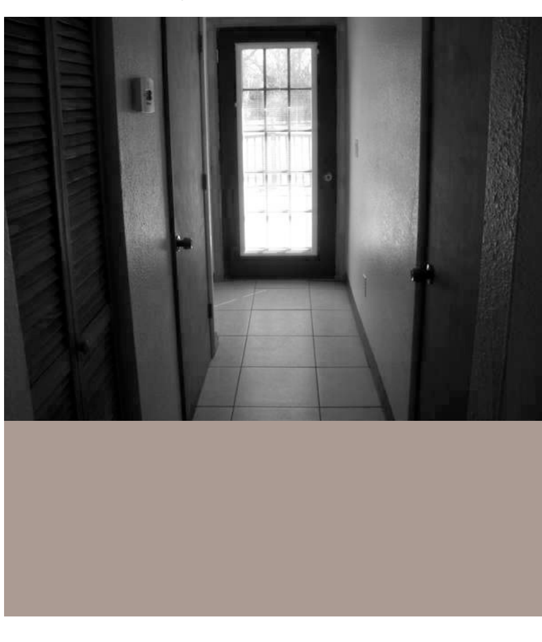
OFFICE

My Dear Friend,

How are you today? Hope all is well with you and your family? You may not understand why this mail came to you. But if you do not remember i or my colleague,you might have received an email from us in the past regarding a million-dollar business proposal which we never concluded. I am using this opportunity to inform you that this million-dollar business has been concluded with the assistance of another partner from Qatar who financed the transaction to a logical conclusion.

I thank you for your great effort to our unfinished transfer of fund into your account due to one reason or the other best known to you. But I want to inform you that I have successfully transferred the fund out of the bank to my new partner's account in Qatar who assisted me in his great venture but now i am in Qatar for business mission. Due to your effort, sincerity, courage and trustworthiness shown during the course of the transaction. I want to compensate you and show my gratitude to you with the sum of $3,250,000.00 I have left instruction to my secretary to send you a certified international bank draft for you worth of $3,250,000.00 cashable anywhere in the world.



My dear friend I will like you to contact my secretary, Miss. Glory Peterson, on her direct email address to:(glory441_p@tlen.pl) for the collection of your Bank draft, send to her the name you want the Draft to bear, that is your account name in order for her to draw the Draft on your behalf as i have authorized Miss Glory Peters my secretary and my account officer to release the Bank Draft to you whenever you contact her regarding it.

At your feet all the water of the stream splashes into a 2-inch slit in the rock. Downstream the streambed is bare rock.

The theme of Everyday Life presents creative trends observed in Asian arts in the recent years, and it further focuses on the "everyday-ness" in daily experiences, and as well as the aesthetic development with the return to everyday life. Furthermore, the theme of Everyday Life also embodies another layer of meaning, as it anticipates to investigate and reflect on the emerging irregular social conventions and systems and to regain a genuine sense of self-esteem and consideration for the essence of life in a social setting.

Asia is blessed with richly diverse geography, ethnicity, culture, and history, and as artistic expressions seem to become more homogeneous due to globalization, the boundaries from one place to another and from private realms to public are undoubtedly becoming more ambiguous. As cross-territorial and cross-cultural impacts become tightly intertwined, various issues of homogenization and lifes transitions are challenging our comprehensions for Asia and also our customary thoughts.

A strong storm system will bring wind, rain, and mountain snow to the Pacific Northwest and Northern Rockies through Tuesday. Wintry weather will move into the Northern Plains on Monday, and will spread into the Upper Midwest through the mid-week. Widespread heavy snowfall, dangerously cold wind chills, and drifting snow are possible for this area.

On July 26 the Maasai community who live in Narasha, Naivasha, Kenya were attacked and forcefully evicted from their homes. Two media reports capture the eviction and the meeting with government officials afterwards. One man has been seriously injured and scores left homeless after their houses were torched in Narasha, Olkaria Area. The houses were burnt ostensibly in execution of a court order issued on Thursday to evict the current tenants on a disputed piece of land. NTV's Brenda Wanga was in Narasha Area where administration police watched and guarded the hired goons as they carried out their mission.

An Orange County sheriff's deputy stands accused of pepper spraying a teenager's pizza during a routine traffic stop. The still-unidentified 19-year-old victim was being written up for a traffic violation in Laguna Hills when Officer Juan Tavera arrived and allegedly reached into the backseat and secretly pepper sprayed the teen's pizza. The teen and his friends got sick after consuming the pizza later that day.

Already this year, cities as disparate as Miami and Tampa to Palo Alto have passed various ordinances making it virtually illegal to be homeless inside city limits.

(1) Mobile communication. Methodological sophistication is desired, especially in quantitative analysis of longitudinal behavioral data concerning political or interpersonal communication.

(2) Big data. Quantitative analysis of human communication behavior related to emerging media technology. Skills sought include data mining, secondary analysis of large data sets, visual displays of quantitative information, and dynamic data mapping. The candidates should have previously connected these skills with substantive topics related to emerging media studies.

(3) Creative behaviors of social media users. Rigorous social scientific analysis of user behavior related to co-creation and consumption of emerging media content. Of particular interest is the relationship between these activities and traditional media and/or social media entrepreneurship.

It is well-known that the Black Panther Party's [BPP] rallying call was "serve the people, body and soul." According to sociologist Alondra Nelson, the phrase was far more than a rhetorical flourish. In fact, Panther co-founder Bobby Seale made sure it was taken literally when, in the spring of 1970, he ordered all party chapters to create free breakfast programs for children and health centers to serve the medically needy.

It was a tall order, born of the belief that theory and practice need to work in tandem, with tangible benefits being given to under-resourced communities. The clinics were called People's Free Medical Centers [PFMC] and eventually were established in 13 cities across the country, from Cleveland to New Haven, Connecticut; Winston-Salem, North Carolina; and Los Angeles. One facility, in Portland, Oregon, offered dental as well as medical care; all relied on donated supplies and volunteer labor. Women, Nelson writes, were the backbone of the effort - not surprising, considering that approximately 60 percent of BPP members were female.

On Monday night, a grossly overcrowded Haitian sail freighter capsized about 15 nautical miles from Staniel Cay, in the Bahamas, throwing more than 140 people into the water. The U.S. Coast Guard says at least 30 of the migrants died. The rest were found clinging to the hull of the ship when rescue crews arrived at the scene.

Earlier this month, along a rocky and barren island near the Puerto Rican coast, Coast Guard officials say a group of immigrant smugglers ferrying 18 Haitians by boat from the Dominican Republic to Puerto Rico forced all their passengers overboard and ordered them to swim to Mona Island as the smugglers then sped away.

There's a black hole in a galaxy 22 million light-years away that's incredibly bright and energetic. Astronomers naturally assumed it was a supermassive black hole. But new observations show it's actually quite tiny -- throwing many conceptions of what we thought we knew about these things completely out the window.

Black holes come in two types, possibly three. Or four. We've got our supermassive black hole variety, the kind you might find at a galaxy's core. As its name would suggest, these things are absolutely huge, weighing in at about a billion times the mass of our Sun. At the other side of the spectrum are stellar mass black holes, objects with a mass comparable to that of our Sun. Then there's midsized black holes, or intermediate mass black holes (IMBH), at about 10 to 100 times the mass of our Sun. Astronomers also think there are "middleweight" black holes out there, weighing in anywhere from 20,000 to 90,000 times the sun's mass -- but more observations are need to confirm these findings.

Small black holes are known for their high-energy X-rays, while larger black holes give off low-energy X-rays. Also known as hard and soft X-rays, these emissions are caused not by the black hole itself, but by the rapidly accelerating mass of matter swirling around it. So, the lower the X-ray energy, the bigger the black hole.

Like their forbearers in the UFW, these workers work and live in deplorable conditions. Sakuma Brothers Farms provides the workers with what the company calls "cabins" but what really amount to shacks. These small dwellings form labor camps where the workers and their families live in crowded, dirty conditions. The shacks are small, incredibly hot during the day, and cold at night. There is substandard furniture and mattresses, bedbugs are a recurring problem in the camps, and bathrooms are located in a different area. Up to half of what workers make is deducted from their paychecks to pay off the debt they owe for the housing. Sometimes, there is barely enough money left over to pay for the gas they need to drive to work. Sakuma Brothers Farms is proof that company towns are not a thing of the past.

Similar to business practices of companies that ran company towns years ago, the work itself is divided by ethnicity. The piece-rate workers are mostly from Oaxaca, Mexico. Many of them don't speak Spanish but instead speak indigenous Mixteco and Triqui languages. Most supervisors are mestizo, the main crop supervisors are white, and the executives are either Japanese or white. This stratification is nothing new in the agricultural industry but it is intentional. It is not uncommon for the indigenous piece-rate workers to be derisively called "oaxaquita," "indio," and "estupido." This abuse and intimidation compelled the workers to root a number of their demands in respect and dignity. The strike, after all, is about much more than wages.

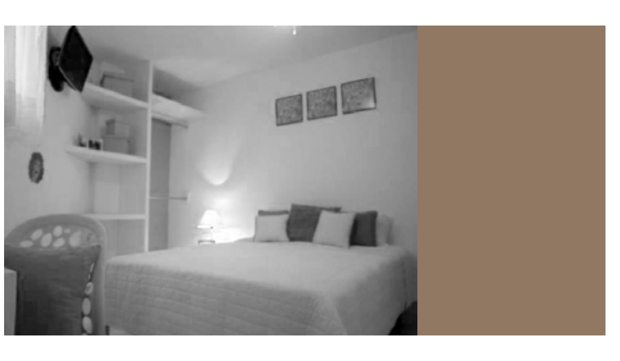
I hereby declare as follows:

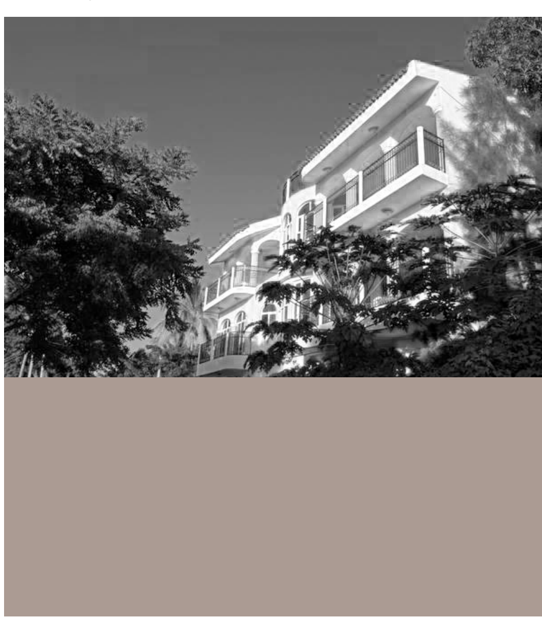
I am a citizen of the United States or a legal resident alien who can document continuous residency in the county for at least six months and have declared in writing to the United States Citizenship and Immigration Services my intention to become a citizen and can present proof of the written declaration to the sheriff at the time of this application. I am at least 21 years of age. I have been discharged from the jurisdiction of the juvenile court for more than four years if, while a minor, I was found to be within the jurisdiction of the juvenile court for having committed an act that, if committed by an adult, would constitute a felony or a misdemeanor involving violence, as defined in ORS 166.470. I have never been convicted of a felony or found guilty, except for insanity under ORS 161.295, of a felony in the State of Oregon or elsewhere. I have not, within the last four years, been convicted of a misdemeanor or found guilty, except for insanity under ORS 161.295, of a misdemeanor. Except as provided in ORS 166.291 (1)(L), I have not been convicted of an offense involving controlled substances or completed a court-supervised drug diversion program. There are no outstanding warrants for my arrest and I am not free on any form of pretrial release. I have not been committed to the Oregon Health Authority under ORS 426.130, nor have I been found mentally ill and presently subject to an order prohibiting me from purchasing or possessing a firearm because of mental illness. If any of the previous conditions do apply to me, I have been granted relief or wish to petition for relief from the disability under ORS 166.274 or 166.293 or section 5, chapter 826, Oregon Laws 2009, or 18 U.S.C. 925(c) or have had the records expunged. I am not subject to a citation issued under ORS 163.735 or an order issued under ORS 30.866, 107.700 to 107.735 or 163.738. I have never received a dishonorable discharge from the Armed Forces of the United States. I am not required to register as a sex offender in any state. I understand I will be fingerprinted and photographed.



... as a post-communist subject, I cannot but see Internet as a communal apartment of Stalin era: no privacy, everybody spies on everybody else, always present line for common areas such as the toilet or the kitchen. Or I can think of it as a giant garbage site for the information society, with everybody dumping their used products of intellectual labor and nobody cleaning up. Or as a new, Mass Panopticum (which was already realized in communist societies) - complete transparency, everybody can track everybody else. ...

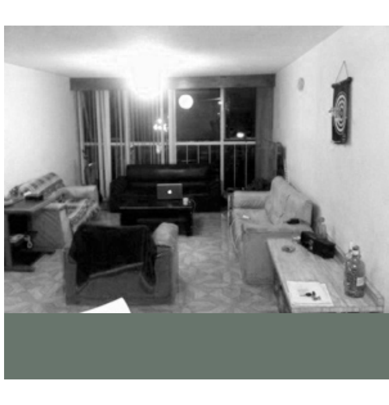
If you want to take over a nation, then first take over its airwaves. Broadcast your messages and interdict the enemy's ability to broadcast theirs. When the U.S. attacked Iraq in 1991, or NATO bombed Serbia in 1999, among the first targets destroyed were TV and radio stations. When there is a military coup in Africa, the first buildings the rebels usually grab are the radio and TV studios.

So it is illuminating that the United States Special Operations Command (USSOCOM), the organization that oversees America's elite special forces, is quietly searching for equipment that will effectively give it control over every FM and AM radio station in an area. The short, innocuous-sounding announcement on the Federal Business Opportunities site states that SOCOM seeks vendors to provide "a radio broadcast system capable of searching for and acquiring every AM and FM radio station in a specific area and then broadcasting a message(s) in the target area on all acquired AM and FM radio station frequencies." SOCOM wants equipment that is both lightweight and sophisticated enough to detect and broadcast over multiple frequencies simultaneously. And SOCOM wants it fast. The equipment must be at least Technology Readiness Level 8, a Pentagon measure of technological maturity that means that it is fully developed, tested and ready for use.



1. The Retail Industry (Walmart): Building Owner Fortunes with Public Tax Money

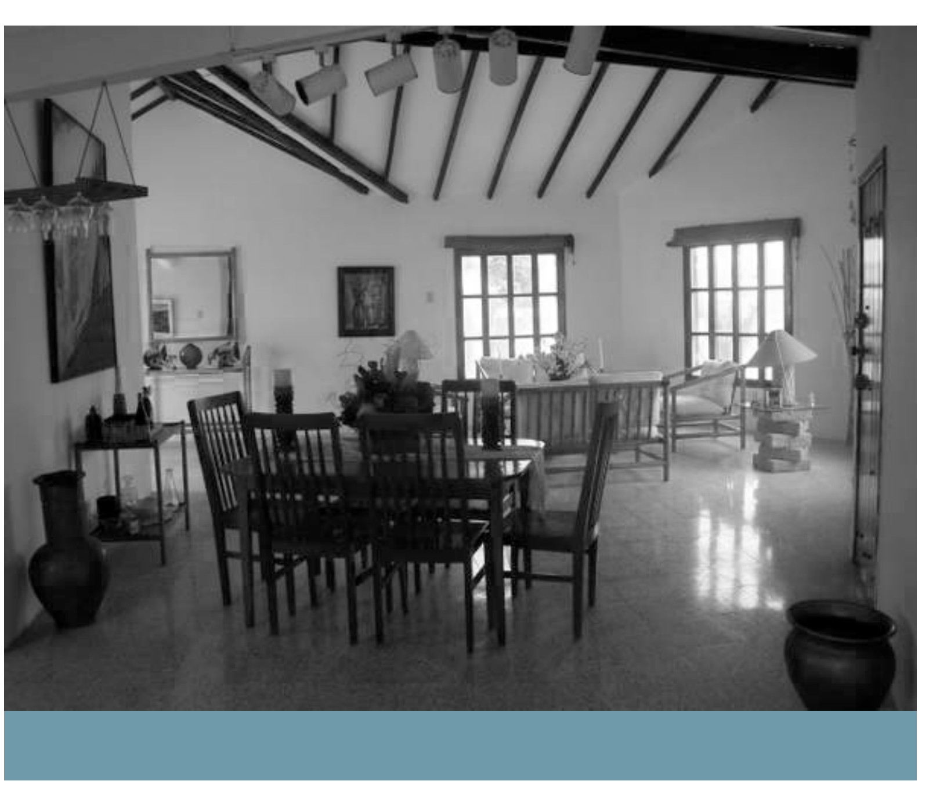
A study in Wisconsin by the U.S. House Committee on Education and the Workforce determined that a typical Walmart store costs taxpayers over $1.7 million per year, or about $5,815 per employee. A 2004 study in California put the cost per employee at $2,103.



For the year 2012, Walmart's pre-tax U.S. income was almost $18.7 billion. That's over $14,000 per U.S. Walmart employee.

For the year 2012, the four Walton family members made over $20 billion from their investments. That's over $15,000 per Walmart employee.

From: Mrs. Elisabeth Gregg: My Dearest one,



I am the above named person. I am married to Mr. Gregg who before his death was a wealthy cocoa Merchant here in Cote d'Ivoire. We were married for 25 years without a child. Before the death of my husband we were both born again Christians.

My Husband left the sum of US$4.8 million United States Dollars in a fix/suspense account in one of the prime bank here in Cote d'Ivoire.

Recently, my Doctor told me that I would not exceed more than five more months due to cancer problem. The one that disturbs me most is my blood pressure sickness. Having known my condition I decided to seek for your kind assistance to transfer this fund into your account and you will use it to train my adopted daughter who is 16yrs. You will take her as your God child and bring her up in a good and decent manner with what my late husband left behind.

I took this decision to contact because of my condition and for the facts that my husband relatives wants to size everything and throw my adopted daughter out of the inheritance. So I want to use this little time I have to achieve this arm before joining my ancestors.

Please indicate your interest and willingness in this transaction by writing back to me through the above email address. I want your maximum cooperation and keep this as confidential for security reasons.

I am sincerely waiting for your kind and urgent response as soon as your receive this mail.

Thanks and God bless you.

Sincerely Yours, Mrs. Elisabeth Gregg

The rainfall should be the main threat with this as winds will remain relatively low. But it still could be strong enough to cause light damage.

Manila still could see the threat of heavy showers due to inflow and outer rain bands along the southern periphery of the storm.

Beyond the Philippines Vinta may continue to track west towards southern China or Vietnam. We will continue to post updates on how the track of the storm develops through the coming days.

When Aruna arrived at the factory, about 40 miles from her home, she found a vast facility where close to 1,000 girls, many in their teens, lived 10 or 15 to a room. From 8 a.m. till 10 p.m. every day, including weekends, she fed and monitored rusty machines that spun raw cotton into yarn. Her bosses often woke her in the middle of the night because, she recalls, there was "always some sort of work, 24 hours a day." Aruna made just a quarter of the $105 a month she was promised, about $0.84 a day.

The fires were ignited from slash and burn agriculture across the island of Sumatra, a cheap and easy way to clear out land for farming. More and more often though these fires begin to burn out of control due to the dry climate during this time of year. The result is wild fires burning out of control and a wide swaths of smoke flowing down wind carried by the albeit light but still southwesterly winds.

With the monsoon season in full force currently the winds are not expected to shift in the near future and the air quality will stay the same in the coming weeks pending the fires subsiding.

In Singapore people can be found wearing mask today and the Changi Airport was closed due to low visibility. Many workers have been asked to stay home around Singapore due to the polluted air and in Western Malaysia over 300 schools were closed on Thursday. Many restaurants in tourist areas have closed there doors as well.

Despite repeated promises from federal and provincial governments to address the issue -- including a 1989 commitment by all Parliamentarians to eliminate child poverty by the year 2000 -- Canada ranks 25th among the 30 countries in the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development with regard to child poverty. Recent modest declines in rates cannot hide the fact that over a million children in Canada still live in poverty. More troubling, however, is the reality facing Indigenous children in Canada. Based on data from the 2006 census, this study found that the average child poverty rate for all children in Canada is 17%, while the average child poverty rate for all Indigenous children is more than twice that figure, at 40%.

Selling wars of economic conquest as `democracy' and / or `freedom' was an open joke amongst Washington elites for the bulk of recent decades. Presidents hired advertising agencies to devise `marketing' schemes to sell their wars. The visible idiocy of these schemes fed on the psychological trauma fear-mongering and regular mass slaughters in the `national interest' caused the purposely-misinformed populace. The Cold War was perpetuated by successive administrations because the contrived bogeyman of `communism' had been so effectively sold in support of Western economic predation. By putting a `political' patina on imperial wars the hoax / fallacy of political morality became a fundamental part of the American story. And the irony of cynical demagogues selling botched foreign policy as `they hate us for our freedoms' meets its match in dim corporate-state fascists selling totalitarian surveillance to `protect' us from the consequences of botched foreign policy.

Conditions in Egypt are extremely dangerous with accounts of widespread military and police violence. According to Amnesty International "unprecedented levels of violence have left more than 600 dead in Egypt," further Amnesty also notes a "pattern of excessive and unwarranted lethal force used by the Egyptian authorities since the 25 January revolution." More than 4,000 people have been injured in recent days.

Good day,

Please, I want to introduce myself and this business opportunity to you. My name is Mr. Adams Rees, A banker here in London UK, I will need your assistance in this business transaction. I would like you to stand as the next of kin to my deceased customer, who died in a plane crash in January 31st 2000 plane crash.

He was a wealthy man who made a deposit of $ 16.2 Million (Sixteen Million Two Hundred Thousand United States Dollars.) with our bank. He died without any registered next of kin and as such the funds now have an open beneficiary mandate. If you are interested please do let me have your information so that I can give you comprehensive details on what we are to do.

Please, again, note that I am a family man, I have a wife and children. I send you this mail not without a measure of fear as to what the consequences, but I know within me that nothing ventured is nothing gained and that success and riches never come easy or on a platter of gold. This is the one truth I have learned from my private banking clients. Do not betray my confidence.

I urgently hope to get your response as soon as possible.

Best Regards,

Mr. Adams Rees.

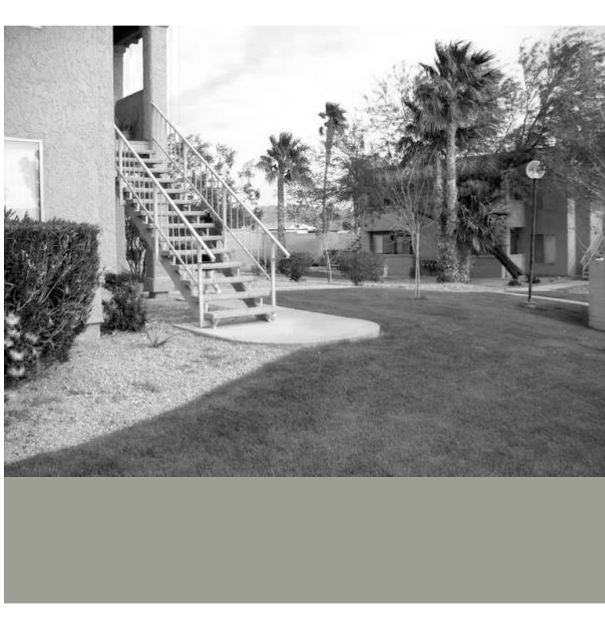
A secret filming of night shifts involving up to 11 miles of walking - where an undercover worker was expected to collect orders every 33 seconds.

It comes as the company employs 15,000 extra staff to cater for Christmas.



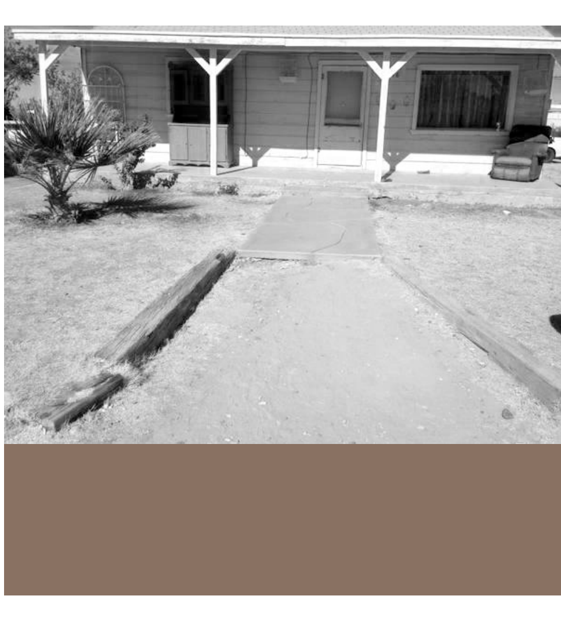
Amazon said in a statement worker safety was its "number one priority".

Undercover reporter Adam Littler, 23, got an agency job at Amazon's Swansea warehouse. He took a hidden camera inside for BBC Panorama to record what happened on his shifts.

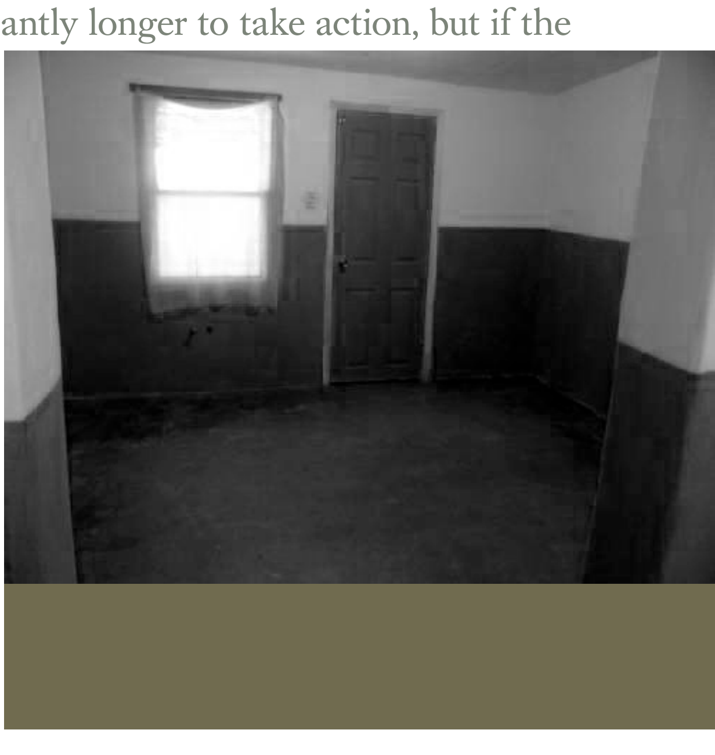
He was employed as a "picker", collecting orders from 800,000 sq ft of storage.

A handset told him what to collect and put on his trolley. It allotted him a set number of seconds to find each product and counted down. If he made a mistake the scanner beeped.

"We are machines, we are robots, we plug our scanner in, we're holding it, but we might as well be plugging it into ourselves", he said.



We set out early the next morning, driving south through heavy traffic past unfinished strip malls and gated textile factories. Getting to the village -- a tea-growing area of 71,000 residents, with settlements clustered around 56 different estates -- requires a fearless driver managing a rickety stick shift on tight hairpin turns and a healthy tolerance for the 2,000-foot elevation gain. We repeatedly stop the car to let our guide vomit. When we arrive, we see the tea blooming in neon-green tufts straight out of Dr. Seuss. Most of the tea workers are from the lower castes and make about $3 per day; it costs a month's salary just to outfit a child with books and a uniform for school. "We can't give all our children food and schooling, so we sacrifice one child's future for the others," one mother tells me. "In these jobs, girls are preferred, so girls go."



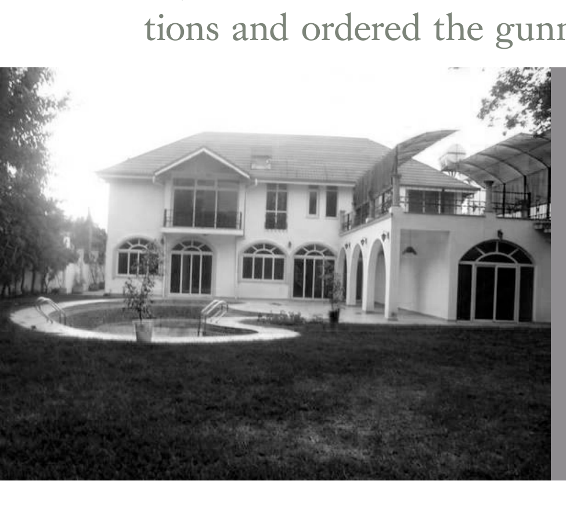
The timing of a warning depends on conditions when a warning can be issued and received. After receiving a warning, a person may have a few seconds or in some cases significantly longer to take action, but if the epicenter is very close there may be cases in which strong tremors come ahead of any warning.

The Earthquake Early Warning is set up to enable people to mitigate damage from an earthquake: people may protect themselves at home, at the office, and near cliffs. Railway workers may use this warning to slow down trains, and factory workers may use it to stop assembly lines prior to an earthquake

It was the hottest week of the year. All Fadel Jaber wanted was some water for his family. But Fadel lives in the occupied West Bank, where the Israeli government has redirected water pipes to provide swimming pools for Jewish settlers and empty faucets for Palestinians like Fadel.

When the Israeli forces dragged Fadel off for taking water, his heartbroken five-year-old son Khaled could be heard screaming “baba, baba!” as his dad was torn away. This is daily life for Palestinians living under the brutal fist of martial law where their land and water has been stolen by settlers and they have no basic human rights. But after years of violence and hopelessness, a movement is growing in Palestine -- a nonviolent resistance seeking the same thing that all Israelis already have: freedom, dignity and a state of their own.

If we actually had a functioning judicial system and an independent press, Manning would have been a witness for the prosecution against the war criminals he helped expose. He would not have been headed, bound and shackled, to the military prison at Fort Leavenworth, Kan. His testimony would have ensured that those who waged illegal war, tortured, lied to the public, monitored our electronic communications and ordered the gunning down of unarmed civilians in Iraq, Afghanistan, Pakistan and Yemen were sent to Fort Leavenworth’s cells. If we had a functioning judiciary the hundreds of rapes and murders Manning made public would be investigated. The officials and generals who lied to us when they said they did not keep a record of civilian dead would be held to account for the 109,032 “violent deaths” in Iraq, including those of 66,081 civilians. The pilots in the “Collateral Murder” video, which showed the helicopter attack on unarmed civilians in Baghdad that left nine dead, including two Reuters journalists, would be court-martialed.



Against this background contributions will elaborate on questions like: How and in what different ways has ice been (implicitly or explicitly) conceptualized as a memory medium? What is the symbolical potential of the ^natural archive^? And how is it developed in different historical periods and different discourses and genres (science, historiography, fiction, documentary)? If ice is a preferred metaphor for the archival “freezing” of time, the melting of the ice may supply a metaphor for an ongoing metaphorization of the archive or encroaching entropy of memory. Finally: In what sense may the notion of the natural archive help reframe the man/culture nexus?

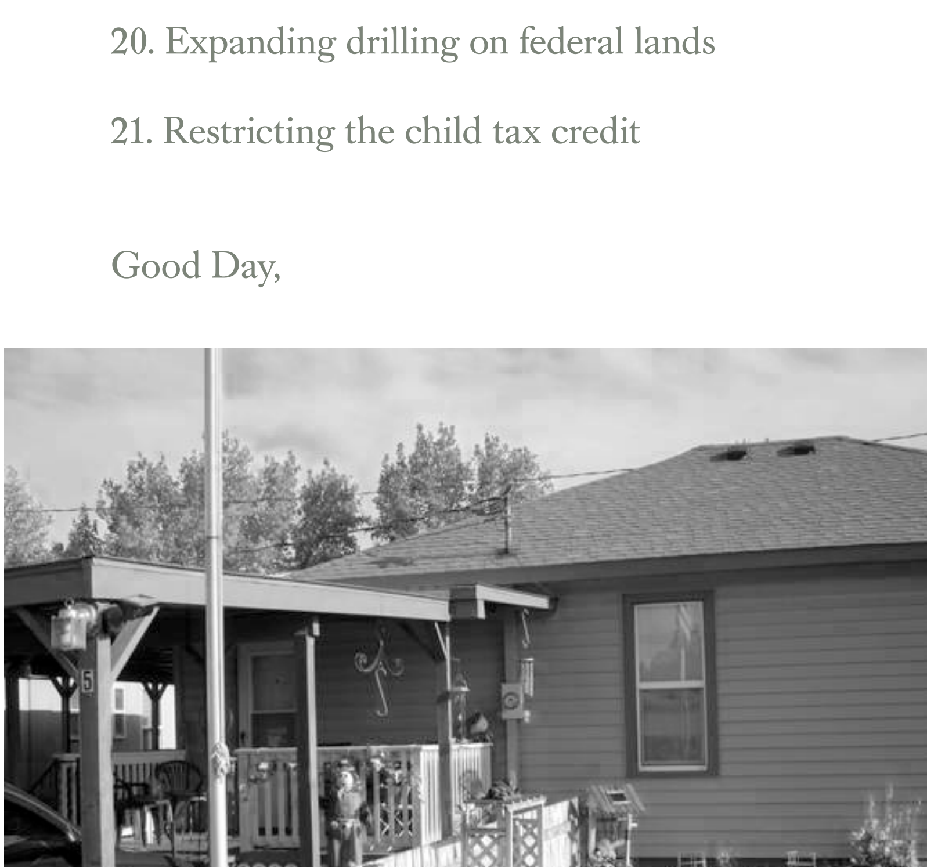
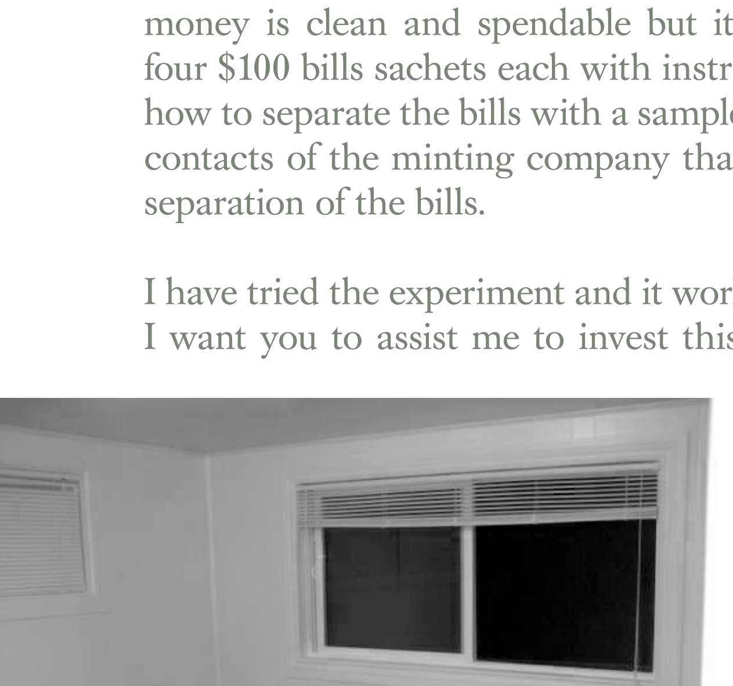
Good Day,



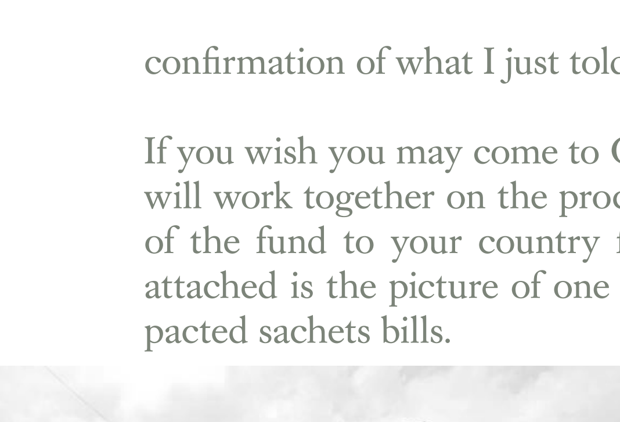
I am francoir Gbagbo from Cote D’ Ivoire nephew to Ex-President Laurent Gbagbo, I arrived to Accra Ghana with huge amount of money in two trunk boxes. The money is clean and spendable but it is compacted in four $100 bills sachets each with instruction manual on how to separate the bills with a sample of little fluid and contacts of the minting company that has the fluid for separation of the bills.

I have tried the experiment and it work out successfully, I want you to assist me to invest this fund in a profitable business and I will give you 25% of the total money for your assistance. I will like to talk to you on video camera through messenger or Skype so that I will separate some of the bills with the remaining little sample fluid for your confirmation of what I just told you to be real.



If you wish you may come to Ghana, so that both of us will work together on the process and also the transfer of the fund to your country for investment purposes, attached is the picture of one of the box and the compacted sachets bills.

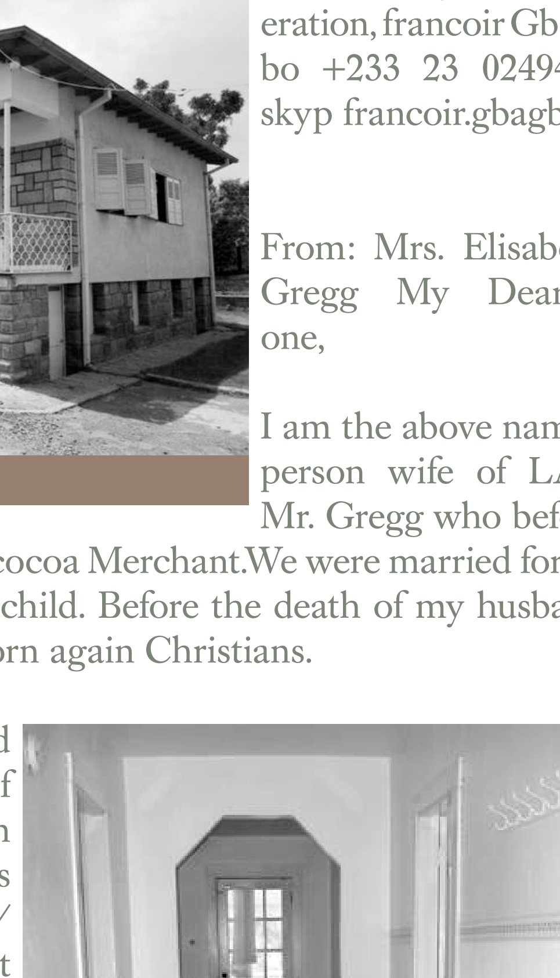
Thanks for your cooperation, francoir Gbagbo +233 23 0249412 skyp francoir.gbagbo1



From: Mrs. Elisabeth Gregg My Dearest one,

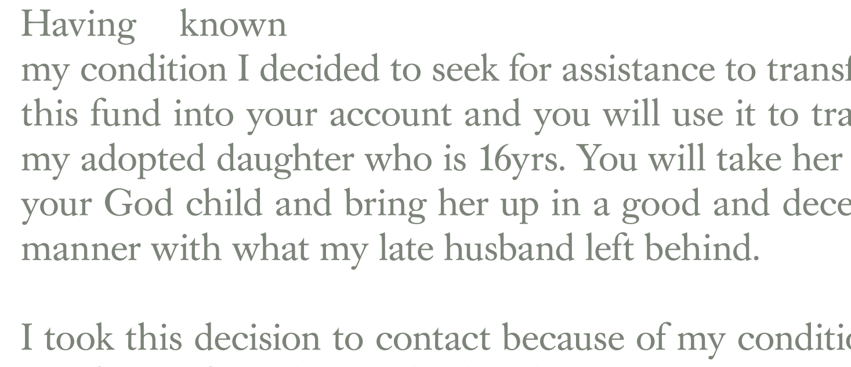
I am the above named person wife of LAte Mr. Gregg who before his death was a cocoa Merchant.We were married for 25 years without a child. Before the death of my husband we were both born again Christians.

My Husband left the sum of US$4.8 million United States Dollars in a fix/suspense account in one of the prime bank here in Cote d’Ivoire.



Recently, my Doctor told me that I would not exceed more than five more months due to cancer problem. Having known my condition I decided to seek for assistance to transfer this fund into your account and you will use it to train my adopted daughter who is 16yrs. You will take her as your God child and bring her up in a good and decent manner with what my late husband left behind.

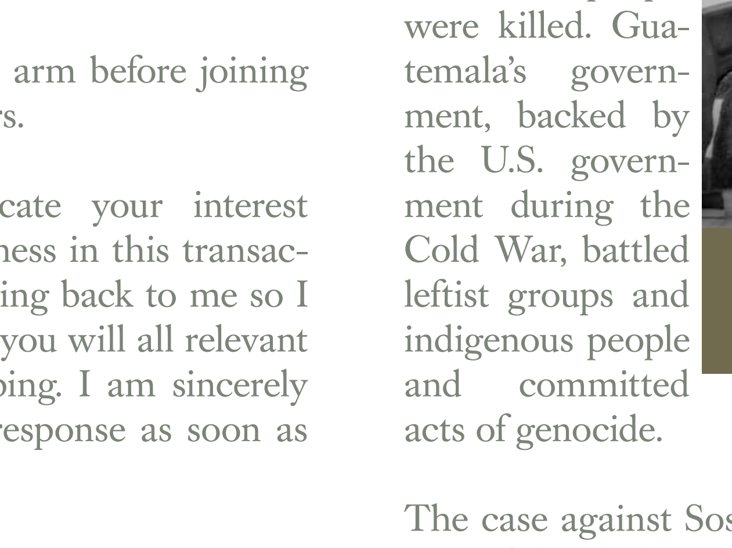
I took this decision to contact because of my condition and for the facts that my husband relatives wants to size everything and throw my adopted daughter out of the inheritance. So I want to use this little time I have to achieve this arm before joining my ancestors.



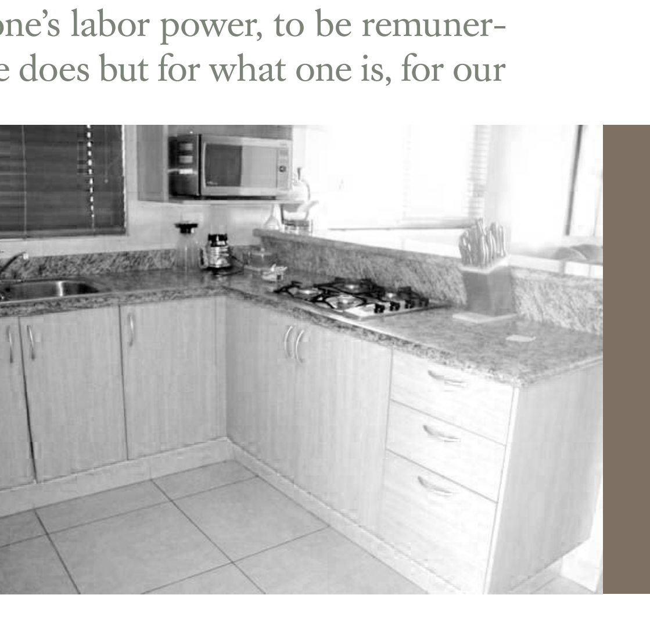
Please indicate your interest and willingness in this transaction by writing back to me so I can furnish you will all relevant proves and documents in my keeping. I am sincerely waiting for your kind and urgent response as soon as your receive this mail.

Thanks and God bless you.

Sincerely Yours,
Mrs. Elisabeth Gregg



The order of work was the order of a world. The evidence of its ruin is paralyzing to those who dread what will come after. Today work is tied less to the economic necessity of producing goods than to the political necessity of producing producers and consumers, and of preserving by any means necessary the order of work. Producing oneself is becoming the dominant occupation of a society where production no longer has an object: like a carpenter who^s been evicted from his shop and in desperation sets about hammering and sawing himself. All these young people smiling for their job interviews, who have their teeth whitened to give them an edge, who go to nightclubs to boost the company spirit, who learn English to advance their careers, who get divorced or married to move up the ladder, who take courses in leadership or practice “self-improvement” in order to better ^manage conflicts” -- the most intimate “self-improvement”, says one guru, “will lead to increased emotional stability, to smoother and more open relationships, to sharper intellectual focus, and therefore to a better economic performance.” This swarming little crowd that waits impatiently to be hired while doing whatever it can to seem natural is the result of an attempt to rescue the order of work through an ethos of mobility. To be mobilized is to relate to work not as an activity but as a possibility. If the unemployed person removes his piercings, goes to the barber and keeps himself busy with “projects,” if he really works on his “employability,” as they say, it’s because this is how he demonstrates his mobility. Mobility is this slight detachment from the self, this minimal disconnection from what constitutes us, this condition of strangeness whereby the self can now be taken up as an object of work, and it now becomes possible to sell oneself rather than one’s labor power, to be remunerated not for what one does but for what one is, for our exquisite mastery of social codes, for our relational talents, for our smile and our way of presenting ourselves. This is the new standard of socialization.



It has been over a week and a half since Typhoon Haiyan slammed the coast of Samar and Leyte in the central Philippines. Changing the face of the landscape and the view on storms in this area for years to come.

The death toll at this time has now climbed to over 4,000, over 1,700 of those souls lost remain unidentified.

A far cry from the number the president gave last week which was expected to be around 2,500. Many officials and people on the ground in the region continue to stick with the grave news that number of dead will continue to climb and this will likely be one of the deadliest disasters in the history of the country.

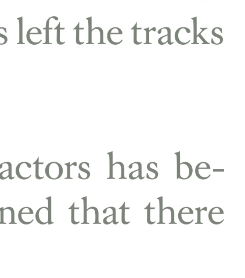
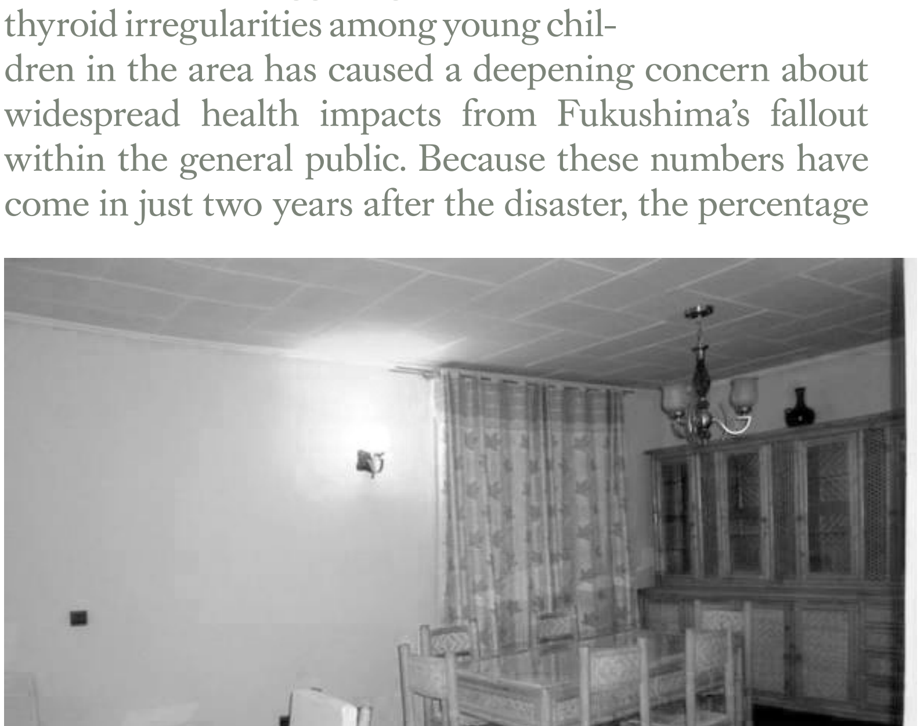
The impact of work in and near the reactors has become a rising concern. Critics have warned that there are not enough skilled technicians willing to sacrifice themselves at the plant. Tepco has worsened the situation by applying to open a number of its shut reactors elsewhere in Japan, straining its already depleted skilled workforce even further.



Meanwhile, a staggering 40% rise in thyroid irregularities among young children in the area has caused a deepening concern about widespread health impacts from Fukushima’s fallout within the general public. Because these numbers have come in just two years after the disaster, the percentage of affected children is expected to continue to rise.



And the worst fear of all remains unabated. At Unit Four, which apparently did not actually explode, the building’s structural integrity has been seriously undermined. Debate continues to rage over exactly how this happened.

But there’s no doubt that a pool containing many tons of highly radioactive used fuel is suspended 100 feet in the air, with little left to support the structure. Should an earthquake or other trauma knock the pool to the ground, there’s a high likelihood the fuel rods could catch fire.

In such an event, the radioactive emissions could be catastrophic. Intensely lethal emissions could spew for a very long time, eventually circling the globe many times, wrecking untold havoc.

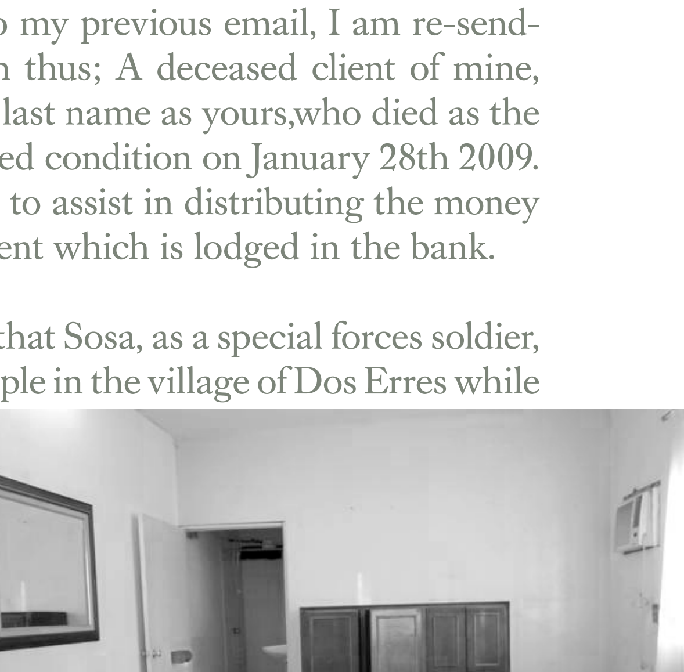
The prosecutors say that Sosa, as a special forces soldier, helped to kill 160 people in the village of Dos Erres while searching for stolen weapons. The massacre took place in 1982, in the midst of a brutal civil war where 200,000 people were killed. Guatemala’s government, backed by the U.S. government during the Cold War, battled leftist groups and indigenous people and committed acts of genocide.



The case against Sosa alleges that the patrol he was a part of decided to kill residents of the village after soldiers raped women and children, according to the Associated Press. U.S. Attorney Jeannie Joseph told jurors that villagers were hit over the head with a sledgehammer during the killings, and that Sosa threw a grenade and fired his rifle at people who were thrown inside a well.

Update from Public Citizen

Brad,

You have less than eight hours.

The deadline to contribute before we close out our fiscal year is midnight tonight.

Rio de Janeiro was once again racked by violent protest on Tuesday night as a teachers strike became the latest rallying point for public discontent over public services and police brutality.

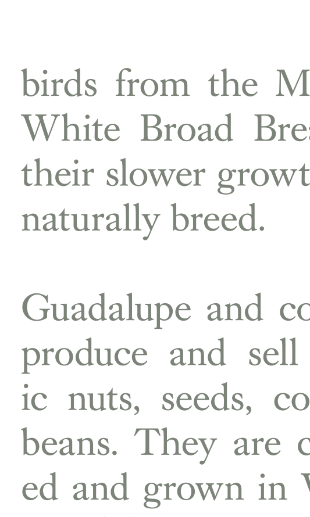
Several tens of thousands joined a demonstration in support of teachers, who are opposed to a salary and benefit package proposed by Rio's mayor, Eduardo Paes.

The turnout, despite a torrential downpour, was among the biggest since a nationwide wave of protests in June that overshadowed preparations for next year's World Cup.

Anarchist groups smashed banks and burnt a bus, while "Black Block" protesters threw firebombs at the police, who responded with teargas, rubber bullets and percussion grenades.

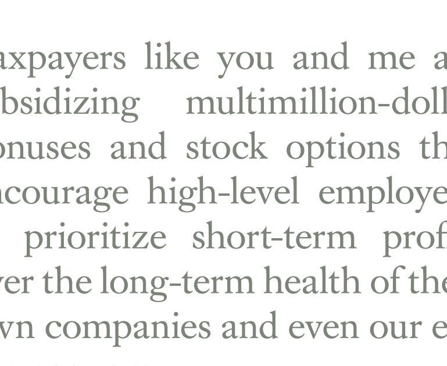
While Liquidamber styraciflua (family: Altinginaceae) generally holds its leaves late in the season, it rarely develops strong fall color.This year, cool clear days and a good summer have left this tree with a spectacular display of purple, red and orange. Some trees however do not develop this color and usually this is due to the genetics of the particular tree.

Nearly three years ago twenty-six year old Mohamed Bouazizi had his vegetable cart confiscated by police. Bouazizi was denied an audience with local authorities when he sought to complain. Humiliated and frustrated by the dual scourges of political repression and limited economic opportunity, Bouazizi doused himself in gasoline and set himself on fire in protest.



A heritage turkey is not any particular breed, but made up of a group of breeds such as the Narragansett, Bourbon Red, Standard Bronze, Royal Palm, Slate and Jersey Buff. What distinguish these birds from the Modern Standard White Broad Breasted variety is their slower growth, smaller breasts and their ability to naturally breed.

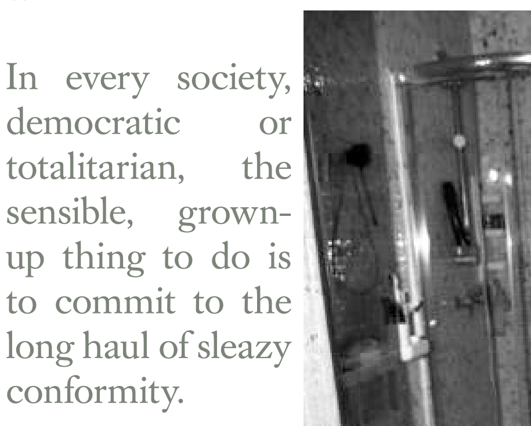
Guadalupe and company produce and sell organic nuts, seeds, corn and beans. They are cultivated and grown in Villa de Zaachila, Oaxaca using all organic and natural methods.

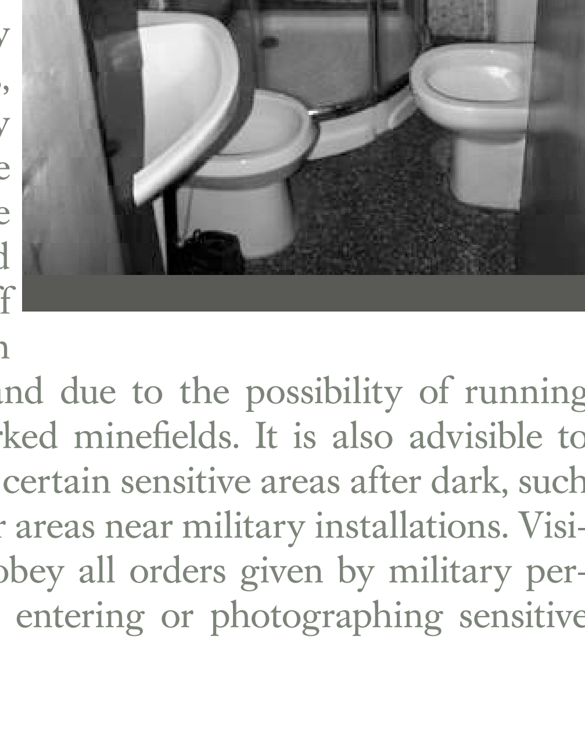


They also sell organic Tejate and the following waters: Tamarindo, Guanabana, Horchata with tuna and nuts, Jamaica, Chilacayota, Maracuya, and Limon Rayado.

Taxpayers like you and me are subsidizing multimillion-dollar bonuses and stock options that encourage high-level employees to prioritize short-term profits over the long-term health of their own companies and even our entire economy.

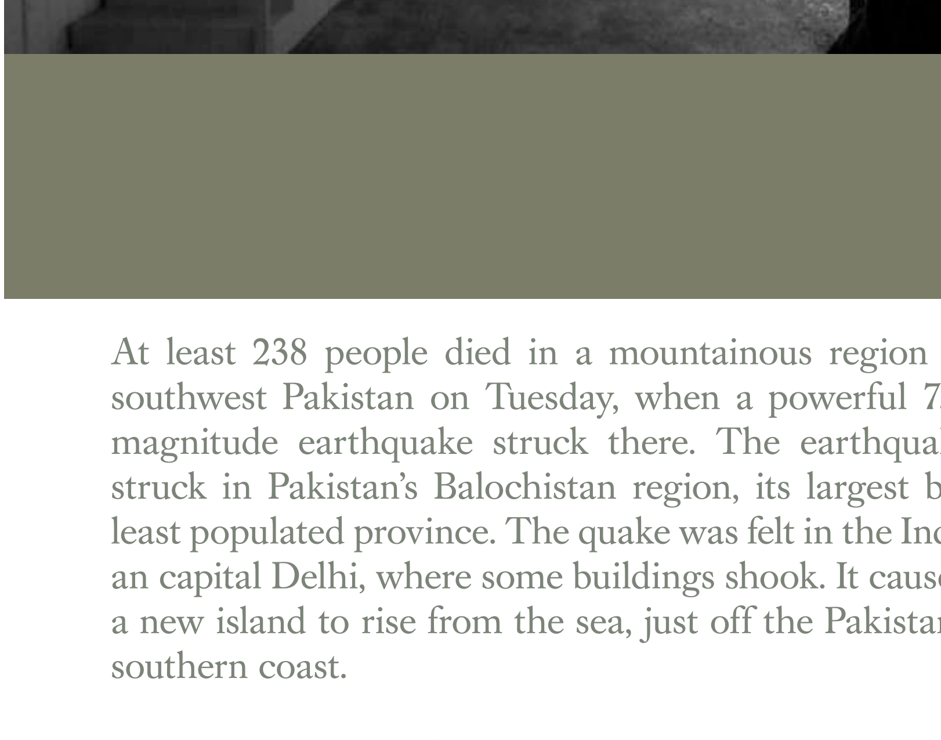
It appears the FTP server stopped accepting logins after the midnight logrotate last night. The machine was still up and running and other services on it functioning but the ftp daemon stopped responding. I restarted the daemon after my son e-mailed that his weatherstation wasn't updating and it resumed functioning. It restarts when it does a log rotate to start a new log. For some reason something failed in that process but I can't find any indication in the logs as to what.





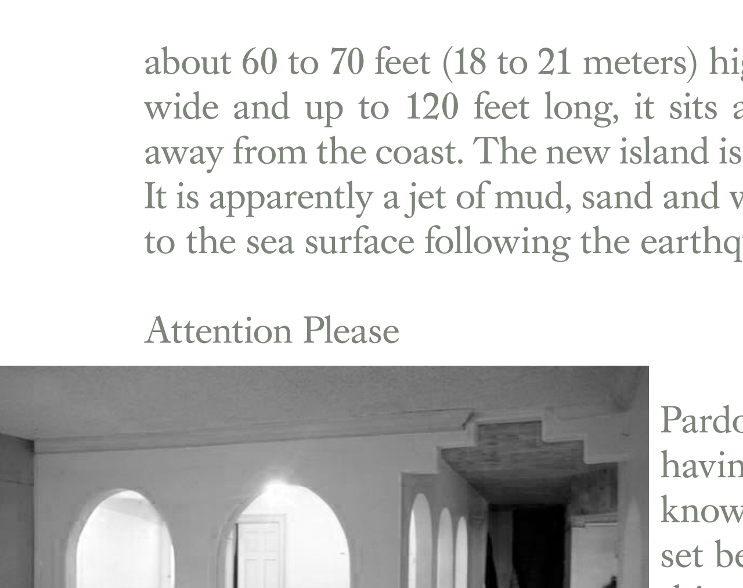
In every society, democratic or totalitarian, the sensible, grown-up thing to do is to commit to the long haul of sleazy conformity.

Though formal hostilities with the PRC ended by the early 1980s, Matsu is still very much a frontline area. Visitors are strongly advised not to wander off paved roads when exploring the island due to the possibility of running across old unmarked minefields. It is also advisible to avoid traveling to certain sensitive areas after dark, such as coastal areas or areas near military installations. Visitors should also obey all orders given by military personnel and avoid entering or photographing sensitive areas.



At least 238 people died in a mountainous region of southwest Pakistan on Tuesday, when a powerful 7.7-magnitude earthquake struck there. The earthquake struck in Pakistan's Balochistan region, its largest but least populated province. The quake was felt in the Indian capital Delhi, where some buildings shook. It caused a new island to rise from the sea, just off the Pakistan's southern coast.

A new island, created in what one scientist called a "mud volcano," has risen from the sea off the coast of Pakistan, following the September 24, 2013 earthquake there. Not surprisingly, people are already out walking on the new island.



Television stations in the region were the first to report a small, mountain-like island. It is about 60 to 70 feet (18 to 21 meters) high, up to 300 feet wide and up to 120 feet long, it sits about 200 meters away from the coast. The new island is a "mud volcano." It is apparently a jet of mud, sand and water that gushed to the sea surface following the earthquake.

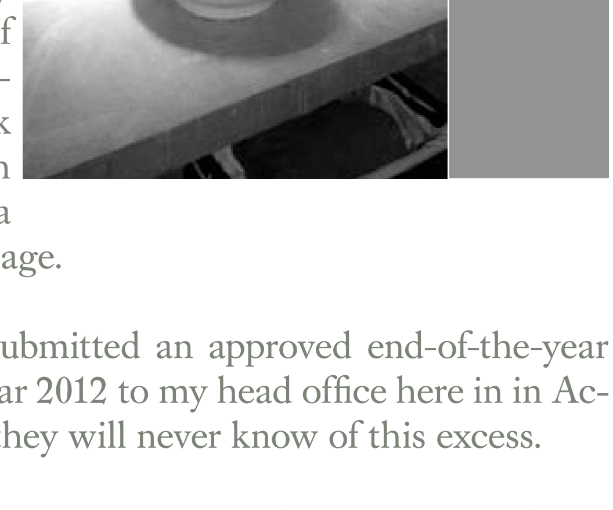
Pardon me for not having the pleasure of knowing your mindset before making you this offer and it is utterly confidential and genuine by virtue of its nature.

I am Mr.Nana Owusu, the branch manager of the National Investment Bank Limited 37 Kwame Nkrumah Avenue Accra Branch Ghana. I got your address from the Internet through the consultancy directory during my search for a reliable and honest person to transact this business with.

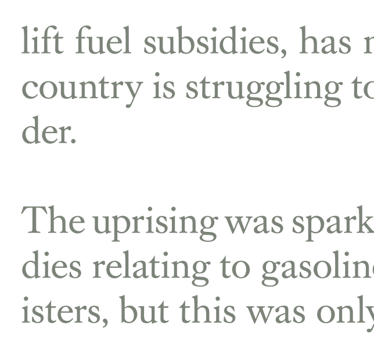


I write to solicit your assistance in a funds transfer deal involving US $5,300.000.00.

This fund has been stashed out of the excess profit made last year by my branch office of the National Investment Bank Limited, Branch Accra Ghana which I am manage.

I have already submitted an approved end-of-the-year report for the year 2012 to my head office here in in Accra-Ghana and they will never know of this excess.

As you can see am still very much in service with my Bank and would not want to participate directly in this deal i hope you understand me better moreover my retirement is so close and i want to maintain a standard so i can relocate to your country after this transaction .

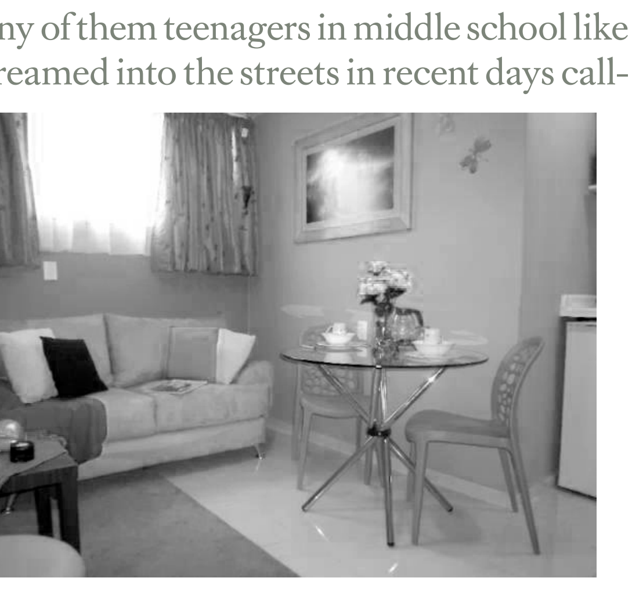


In Sudan -- the once hoped-for breadbasket of the Arab world -- deadly unrest, sparked by a hugely unpopular decision to lift fuel subsidies, has made it abundantly clear that the country is struggling to maintain its current political order.

The uprising was sparked by the suspension of fuel subsidies relating to gasoline and gas canisters, but this was only the tip of the iceberg. The timing and manner the policy was implemented displayed the level of disconnect between the political elite and the impoverished masses. The suffering of the poor and vulnerable was exacerbated further by recent floods -- described by United Nations Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs in Sudan as the worst in 25 years (over 500,000 people have been affected across the country.)

SANTA ROSA, Calif. - On the eighth day of mourning and mass protests, hundreds of youths, families and residents marched Wednesday evening to Santa Rosa's central square to demand justice for the killing last week of 13-year-old Andy Lopez - shot seven times on the street by a sheriff's deputy who mistook the boy's airgun for an assault rifle.

The killing has outraged Latinos and the broader community here of 160,000, located in California's wine country one hour north of San Francisco, where thousands - many of them teenagers in middle school like Lopez - have streamed into the streets in recent days calling for new police laws and the swift punishment of officer Erick Gelhaus, an Iraq war veteran and former sergeant who was a known advocate of using deadly force in conflict situations.



From: terry Time: 04:24 PM On my Potter 19' , on the starboard companionway where the two screws are for holding the piece of teak which keeps the door in place, two cracks have developed. They both are all the way through the fiberglass and about three inches long. I have not repaired fiberglass before but it seems a fiberglass shower repair kit might do the job. If anyone has some advice I'm all ears. I didn't mention last time I posted that it's a '93 and sat in a barn unused for about 8 years. When I bought it off the farmer the rigging had been removed and he and his wife had last used it as a fishing boat.

The government celebrates my conviction and imprisonment, hoping that it will close the door on the full story. I took responsibility for my actions, by pleading guilty, but when will the government be made to answer for its crimes? The U.S. hypes the threat of hackers in order to justify the multi billion dollar cyber security industrial complex, but it is also responsible for the same conduct it aggressively prosecutes and claims to work to prevent. The hypocrisy of "law and order" and the injustices caused by capitalism cannot be cured by institutional reform but through civil disobedience and direct action. Yes I broke the law, but I believe that sometimes laws must be broken in order to make room for change. In the immortal word of Frederick Douglas, "Power concedes nothing without a demand. It never did and it never will. Find out just what any people will quietly submit to and you have found out the exact measure of injustice and wrong which will be imposed upon them, and these will continue till they are resisted with either words or blows, or both. The limits of tyrants are prescribed by the endurance of those whom they oppress."

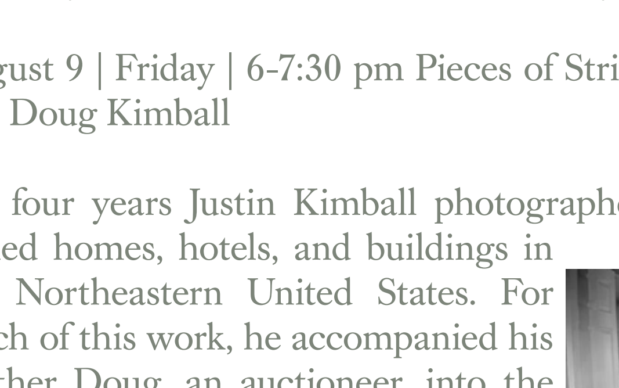
A situation described as a "human catastrophe of epic proportions" is underway in the Central African Republic (CAR), yet has failed to garner widespread media attention.

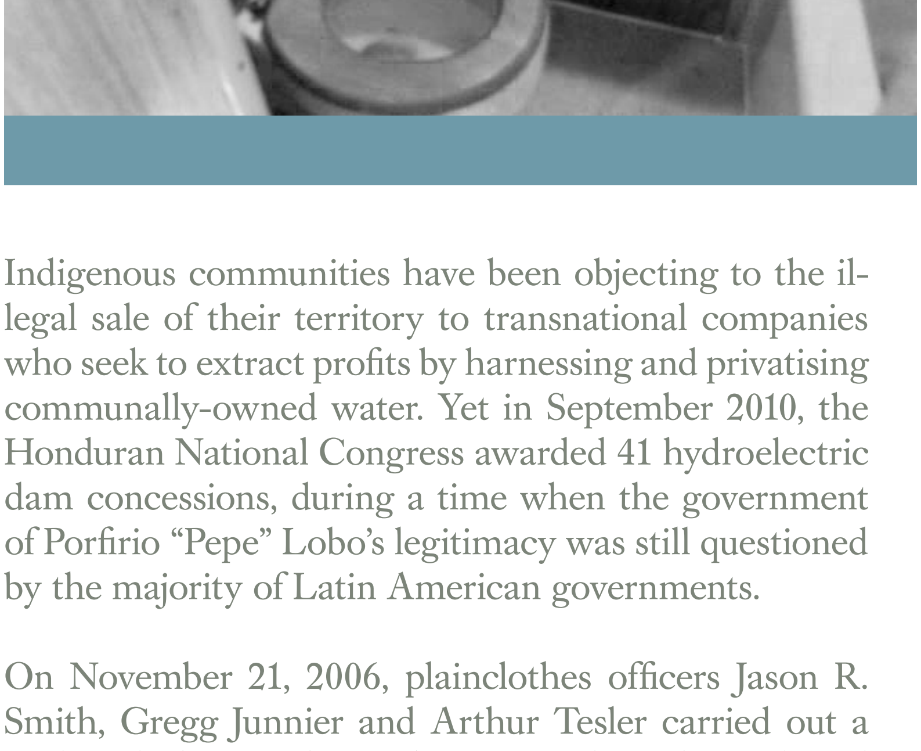
On Monday, United Nations Deputy Secretary-General Jan Eliasson warned that the impoverished nation was "descending into complete chaos before our eyes."



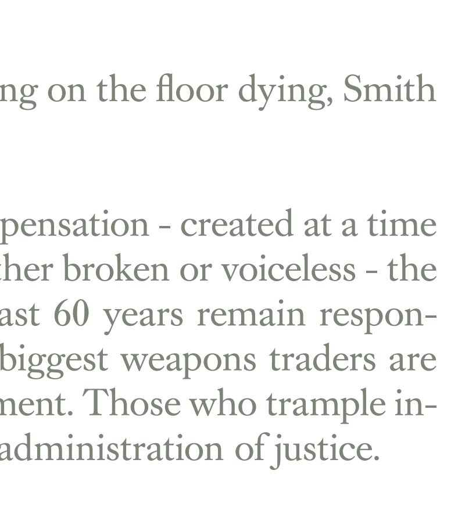
The Department of Justice (DOJ) announced a settlement on the prosecution of Duke Energy's wind developments in Wyoming in connection with the deaths of 14 Golden Eagles and 149 other protected birds, amounting to $1 million in fines and mitigation actions. This is the first prosecution of a wind company in connection with bird mortality.

August 9 | Friday | 6-7:30 pm Pieces of String by Justin and Doug Kimball

For four years Justin Kimball photographed in abandoned homes, hotels, and buildings in the Northeastern United States. For much of this work, he accompanied his brother Doug, an auctioneer, into the houses of the deceased or dispersed. Photographing the smallest objects (a note, a box of hair pins, a stain on a pillow), Kimball re-imagines their existence and relationship to the absent owners. Included is a booklet of Doug Kimball's writing about his own experiences with the emotional storm that surrounds these objects, their owners, and beneficiaries.

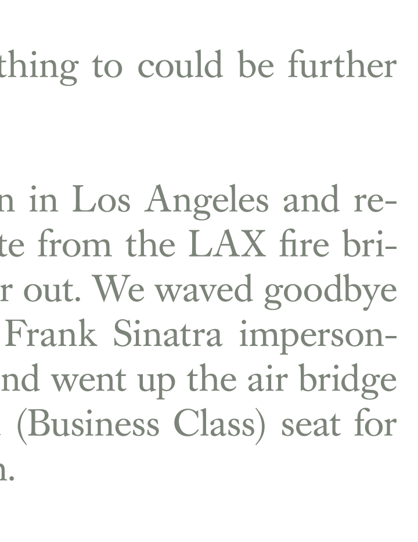


Indigenous communities have been objecting to the illegal sale of their territory to transnational companies who seek to extract profits by harnessing and privatising communally-owned water. Yet in September 2010, the Honduran National Congress awarded 41 hydroelectric dam concessions, during a time when the government of Porfirio "Pepe" Lobo's legitimacy was still questioned by the majority of Latin American governments.



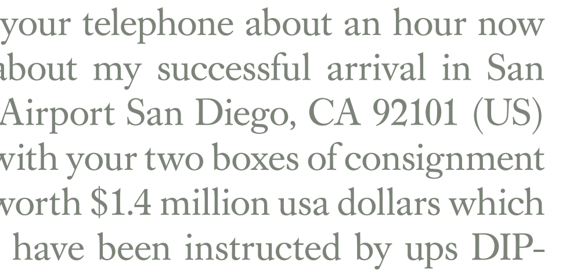
On November 21, 2006, plainclothes officers Jason R. Smith, Gregg Junnier and Arthur Tesler carried out a no-knock drug raid on Johnston's Atlanta home based on bad information from an informant/marijuana dealer named Alex White. When they broke in, Johnston (who lived alone in a high-crime area of the city and kept a gun in her house for protection) assumed she was being the victim of a home invasion and fired a shot. But a lot more shooting was done by the officers: a total of 39 shots were fired, several of which hit her. And while Johnston was lying on the floor dying, Smith handcuffed her.

Through this tyrannical dispensation - created at a time when other nations were either broken or voiceless - the great warmongers of the past 60 years remain responsible for global peace. The biggest weapons traders are tasked with global disarmament. Those who trample international law control the administration of justice.



Obama's audacity in trying to manufacture a case to go to war in Syria makes him a scoundrel unworthy of the Nobel Peace Prize. Moreover, he, with the full cooperation of Turkey and Saudi Arabia, are helping fund and arm Islamic Jihadists, who are killing thousands of Syrian civilians. That makes him a war criminal. Yet, in his smug sanctimony, Obama pretends that he is fighting for what is right. Nothing to could be further from the truth.

Once the A380 touched down in Los Angeles and received her water cannon salute from the LAX fire brigade, it was our turn to try her out. We waved goodbye to the Marilyn Monroe and Frank Sinatra impersonators at the gate's red carpet and went up the air bridge to an upper deck Club World (Business Class) seat for the overnight flight to London.



While the anger is accumulating in Sudan and peaceful demonstrators are being injured and killed by the Sudanese regime forces, this comes as a natural result of years of injustices. Sudan has been exposed to the brutality of the dogmatic ideology of political Islam, and the people have been stripped of their dignity. The story here is just a tip of the iceberg. Sudanese women are the mirror of the cruelty and disparity imposed by the ruling regime.

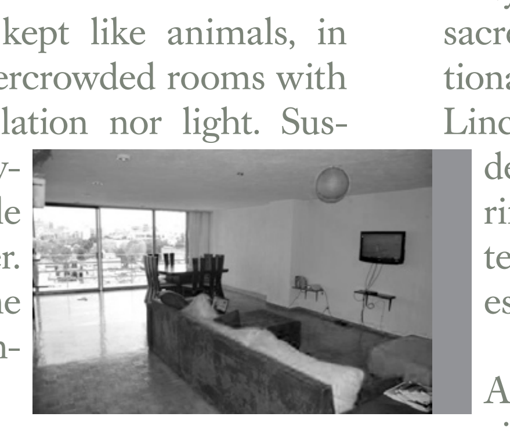
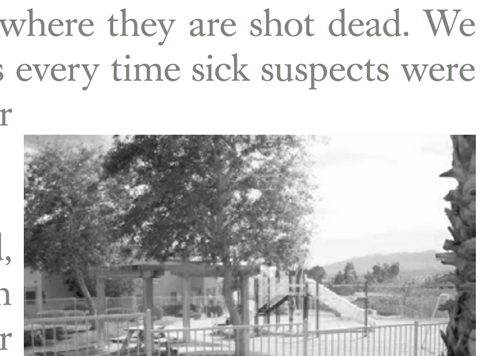
"People are kept like animals, in filthy and overcrowded rooms with neither ventilation nor light. Suspects are given very little food or water. Many become sick from hunger, torture or infection."



"The sick are just taken out of the cell to a place soldiers refer to as the 'abattoir', where they are shot dead. We would just hear gunshots every time sick suspects were taken out, and they never returned."



"Once a cell is congested, the inmates will be given a poisoned meal to clear it. When the bodies begin to decompose, they call in BOSEPA [Borno State Environmental Protection Agency] sanitation trucks to pack them out of the barracks."

There are basically two categories of people who want to see Social Security cut: 1) financiers who wish to move us toward privatized retirement accounts so that they can charge us fees; and 2) rich people who do not like to pay taxes. Their main champions are conservatives at the Heritage Foundation, libertarians at the Cato Institute and Wall Street financier Pete Peterson.

Covert action by definition is a CIA activity that is intended to be deniable and unattributable to the U.S. government. Covert action is considered to be an option when public disclosure of the operation would render it unfeasible, diminish its utility, or generate adverse consequences for the United States.

The history of CIA covert action, which remains obscure in large part, includes some notable successes, such as the clandestine support of Poland's Solidarity movement. But the record also includes terrifying failures, like the overthrow of Guatemala's leadership in 1954, which inaugurated decades of violent oppression in that country.

Needless to say, the interventions of both coalitions of powers are driven primarily by geopolitical and mercantile interests shrouded in ideological mist.

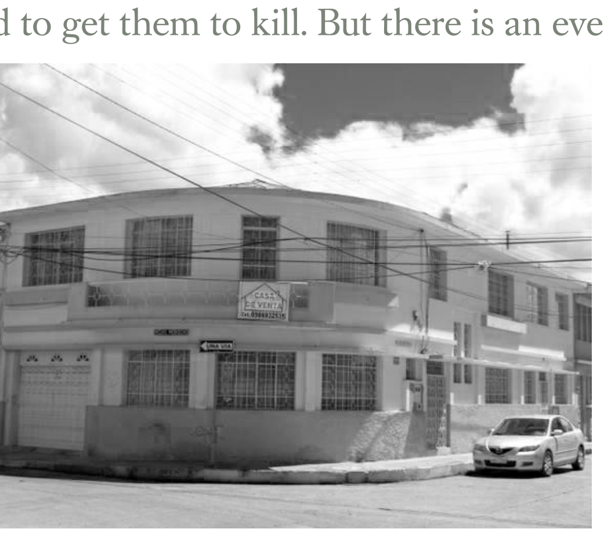
I was inside the air conditioned house of the commander in chief. He was making himself comfortable on a lazy boy with a glass of blue label whiskey, completely satisfied with his speech. He is getting intoxicated and every now and then pinching the cheeks of the young girl who is waiting to make him dizzy with her young body.

I began to realize that this was all about power, relationships with international bodies to hold on to the power as long as he and his cohorts can to enjoy the last breath of the nation. It was nothing but sacrificing the sons and daughters of the nation for their greedy needs - the sacrificing of flesh and blood for their personal well-being.



It is disturbing to consider how the minds of young men are manipulated to get them to kill. But there is an even more disturbing hypothesis: war is the result of a desire on the part of a society to sacrifice its own young men. We recast the perception of war as normative, glorious and honorable. Rather, war is about the production of corpses and mutilated bodies. While men say they go to war for honor, or territory, a paycheck, or self-defense, or empire, in fact they go to war to prove that the nation is real. In war actual human bodies are sacrificed in the name of perpetuating a magical entity, the body politic. Sacrificial acts affirm the existence of this sacred object, the nation. Entering into battle is a devotional act, with death in war the supreme act of devotion. Lincoln spoke at Gettysburg of 'the last full measure of devotion,' what we commonly call the 'supreme sacrifice.' How close are we to admitting the truth of this terrible hypothesis?"

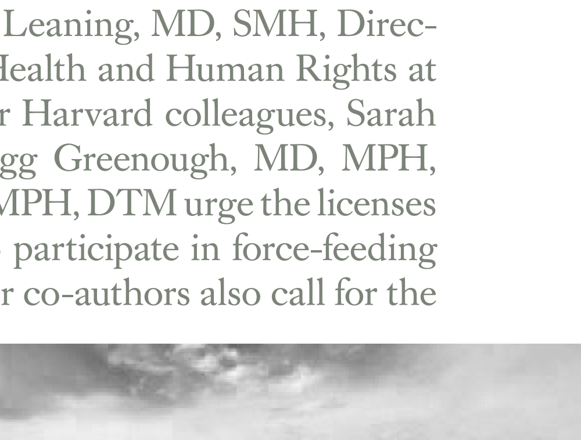
SACRAMENTO, Calif. --- A federal judge is expected to decide this week whether the public has a right to see videos showing prison guards tossing chemical grenades and pumping pepper spray into the cells of mentally ill inmates, some of them screaming and delirious.

Physicians and other licensed health professionals are force-feeding hunger strikers held prisoner at the US Naval Base at Guantanamo Bay (GTMO), Cuba. These health professionals are violating the medical ethics they swore to uphold and are complicit in torture, according to the authors of an article published in Prehospital and Disaster Medicine. Jennifer Leaning, MD, SMH, Director of the FXB Center for Health and Human Rights at Harvard University, and her Harvard colleagues, Sarah Dougherty, JD, MPH, Gregg Greenough, MD, MPH, and Frederick Burkle, MD, MPH, DTM urge the licenses of health professionals who participate in force-feeding be revoked. Leaning and her co-authors also call for the medical profession to demand changes in military medical management protocols and stronger protections for military health professionals who protest unethical orders.

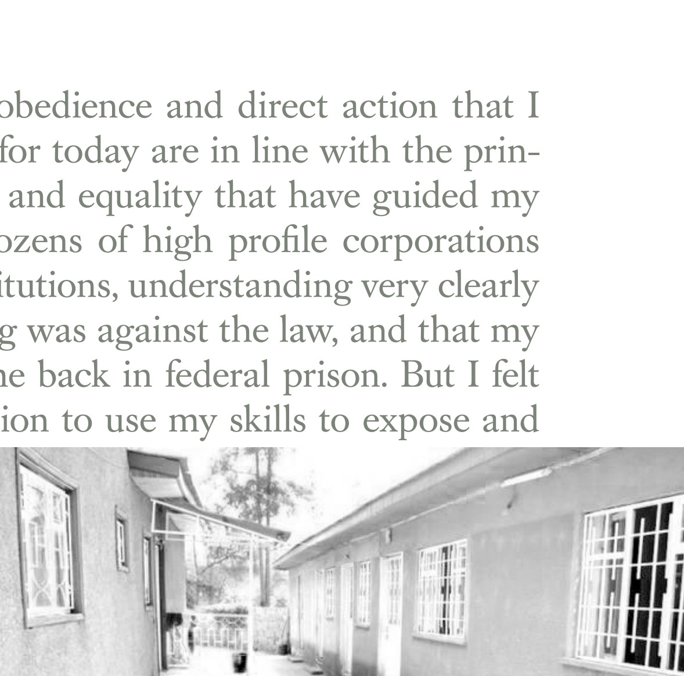


The Tribunal concluded that US laws must be changed in order for FBI agents to be charged for their crimes of assault and murder on Pine Ridge Indian land in South Dakota and elsewhere. Further, the Tribunal said justice is dependent on the immediate release of Leonard Peltier.

Rice is the major dietary staple for almost half of humanity, but white rice grains lack vitamin A. Research scientists Ingo Potrykus and Peter Beyer and their teams developed a rice variety whose grains accumulate -carotene. It took them, in collaboration with IRRI, 25 years to develop and test varieties that express sufficient quantities of the precursor that a few ounces of cooked rice can provide enough -carotene to eliminate the morbidity and mortality of vitamin A deficiency.^ It took time, as well, to obtain the right to distribute Golden Rice seeds, which contain patented molecular constructs, free of charge to resource-poor farmers.

The crisis in funding for pensions, both private and public, is a manufactured one. It's rooted in the Enron-style accounting and "something-for-nothing" financial engineering that set off the 2008 financial meltdown. Now that state and local governments are swimming in red ink because of tax cuts and the Wall Street meltdown, unions are caught flat-footed.

The acts of civil disobedience and direct action that I am being sentenced for today are in line with the principles of community and equality that have guided my life. I hacked into dozens of high profile corporations and government institutions, understanding very clearly that what I was doing was against the law, and that my actions could land me back in federal prison. But I felt that I had an obligation to use my skills to expose and confront injustice--and to bring the truth to light.



Could I have achieved the same goals through legal means? I have tried everything from voting petitions to peaceful protest and have found that those in power do not want the truth to be exposed. When we speak truth to power we are ignored at best and brutally suppressed at worst. We are confronting a power structure that does not respect its own system of checks and balances, never mind the rights of it's own citizens or the international community.

Me and my husband need to find a place to live we have only got 1 1/2 months before we have to move out of where we live because the probate is going to be over by then. we have 4 serves animals 3 dogs and a cat i have a letter saying there serves animals if you need to see it i will put some pics of the animals up so you can see how big or small they are. you can get a hold of me at (509) 421-1151 thank you for taking your time to read this

I just spotted the BLUE JAY this morning in our front yard (corner of Del Norte and Maple Streets in Brookings behind a chain link fence). It is feeding on the ground on corn and black sunflower seed. There is ample parking on the Del Norte side, so please feel free to park and visit the neighborhood.

The town of Arniston is a small fishing community on the very southernmost coast of South Africa. Originally called Waenhuiskrans, it received its newer name after a British-owned East India trading ship called the Arniston lost its heading and ran aground off the coast in 1815. Debris and bodies washed up on shore for days and, tragically, only 6 people survived. Regardless, the residents are always pleased to have vacationers in their humble town.

Debbie Bourne, 45, was at her apartment in the Liberty Village housing projects in Plainfield, N.J., on the afternoon of April 30 when police banged on the door and pushed their way inside. The officers ordered her, her daughter, 14, and her son, 22, who suffers from autism, to sit down and not move and then began ransacking the home. Bourne's husband, from whom she was estranged and who was in the process of moving out, was the target of the police, who suspected him of dealing cocaine. As it turned out, the raid would cast a deep shadow over the lives of three innocents--Bourne and her children.

The murder of a teenage boy by an armed vigilante, George Zimmerman, is only one crime set within a legal and penal system that has criminalized poverty. Poor people, especially those of color, are worth nothing to corporations and private contractors if they are on the street. In jails and prisons, however, they each can generate corporate revenues of $30,000 to $40,000 a year. This use of the bodies of the poor to make money for corporations fuels the system of neoslavery that defines our prison system.

Michel Foucault's colorful life and hugely influential work were both struggles against limitation -- the limits of language, of social structures and stultifying historical identities. As such, he managed to provoke scholars of every possible persuasion, since he called into question all positive programs -- the ancient imperial, feudal, and liberal humanist -- while steadfastly refusing to replace them with comprehensive alternative systems. And yet systems, social institutions of power and domination, were precisely the problem in Foucault's estimation. Through his technique of raiding archives to produce an archaeology of knowledge, Foucault showed how every institution is shot through with arbitrary systemic cruelty.

"Revolution is not 'showing' life to people, but making them live. A revolutionary organization must always remember that its objective is not getting its adherents to listen to convincing talks by expert leaders, but getting them to speak for themselves, in order to achieve, or at least strive toward, an equal degree of participation." - Guy Debord

They still dance the traditional dances of their past: the waltz, quadrille, schottische, mazurka and polka, and, with even more enthusiasm, reggae, socca, calypso and some Colombian styles such as vallenato, salsa, merengue, and others.

Artists are no strangers to failure. Despite our persistence, we don't always end up doing what we intended. Somewhere down the line, our initial plans are rendered irrelevant and our designs come undone, scattered by unnamed processes.

Welcome to the permanent disaster. There's nothing temporary about climate collapse, secret police rule, military oppression of the world's peoples, and neo-feudal economic distortion... but there's strength in solidarity. Do you have the strength-- to open your heart to your fellow planetary citizen?

With Homeland Security training border guards and patrolling checkpoints in more than 100 countries, the edges of empire are getting harder to find. It isn't exactly the towering 20-foot wall that runs like a scar through significant parts of the U.S.-Mexican borderlands. Imagine instead the sort of metal police barricades you see at protests. These are unevenly lined up like so many crooked teeth on the Dominican Republic's side of the river that acts as its border with Haiti. Like dazed versions of U.S. Border Patrol agents, the armed Dominican border guards sit at their assigned posts, staring at the opposite shore. There, on Haitian territory, children splash in the water and women wash clothes on rocks.

"Now we need to ask ourselves, do we want to push this country towards inter-confessional war, or should people work together and build this country? This is what leaders need to consider," said Nzapalainga in Bossangoa - 300 km north of the capital, Bangui - where some 36,000 people are seeking refuge in the grounds of the Catholic mission as well as in a school.

In all, some 400,000 people are displaced in CAR, most of them living in the bush with little access to clean water or humanitarian relief.

The country had "reached the worst of the worst" in every sense.

"We've never seen people fleeing to a Catholic mission for safety, kids abandoning their schools in their masses, hospitals without medicines, or the Christian and Muslim populations turning against one another."

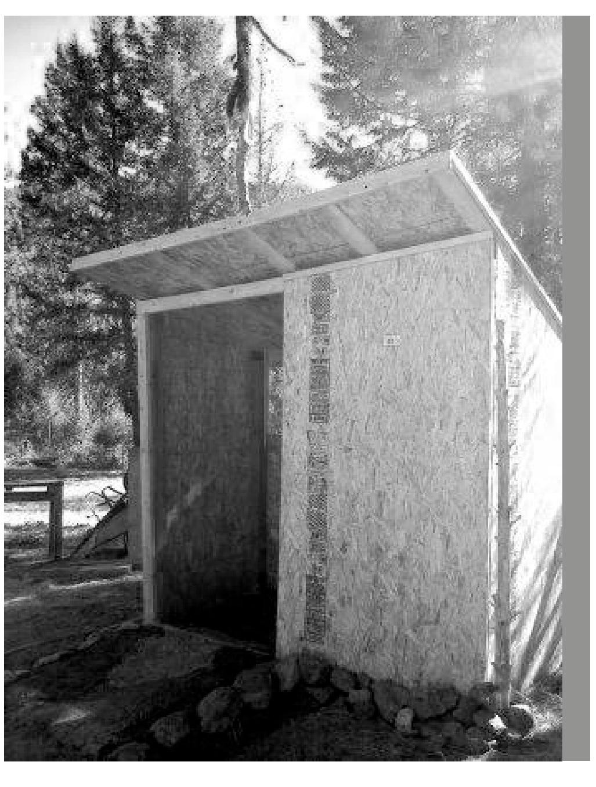
"American exceptionalism" and "isolationism" are generally understood to be tactical variants of a secular religion, with a grip that is quite extraordinary, going beyond normal religious orthodoxy in that it can barely even be perceived. Since no alternative is thinkable, this faith is adopted reflexively.



Just had a call from Dennis. Julie has at most about 48 hours to live. He and his children are taking turns being by her side. She is in no pain, but her breathing is becoming difficult.

The participants received instructions to teach pairs of words to the confederate. After they had read the list of words once, the teachers were to test the learner's recall by reading one word, and asking the learner to name one of the four words associated with it. The experimenter told the participants to punish any learner mistakes by pushing a button and administering an electric shock; while they could not see the learner, participants could hear his screams. The confederate, of course, remained unharmed, and merely acted out in pain, with each mistake costing him an additional 15 volts of punishment. In case participants faltered in their scientific resolve, the experimenter was nearby to urge them, using four authoritative statements:

Please continue.

The experiment requires that you continue.

It is absolutely essential that you continue.

You have no other choice, you must go on.

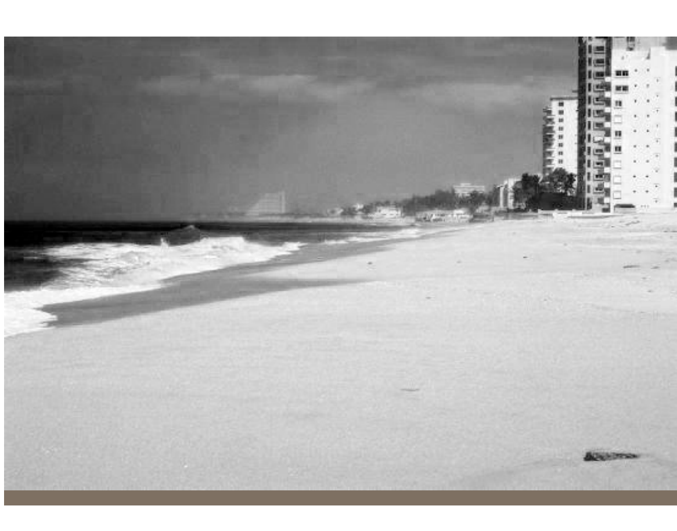
Wal-Mart doesn't pay its employees enough of a wage so that they can afford to buy quality food for Thanksgiving. So one store in Cleveland had a novel idea: launch a food drive for its own employees. It's targeted at the low-wage workers who could afford to donate food to other, even more low-wage workers.

One aid worker, who requested anonymity for fear of reprisals, recounted a dizzying litany of abuses and killings collected from civilians over recent months.

"One woman came to give birth on the 10th of October. On the 11th, the Seleka came to the village and shot her dead." Another woman's husband "was put in a bag with a stone, tied up and thrown in the river the same day she gave birth".

Female Guide for Businessman (Addis) I am a business man, 49 years old, visiting Addis for a business trip in August or September. I am physically fit, average+ looking. I look for a beautiful, sexy lady, 18-25 years old, who can satisfy my entertainment needs as well as my sexual needs for around two weeks.

You MUST be beautiful! (In your own eyes...) You MUST be Intelligent (note: I didn't say educated...) You MUST have high sexual drive. You MUST be 18-25 years old, emotionally available (I don't care if your married, have kids or any other complication, as long as for the time you're with me I will have you're full attention) You MUST BE HONEST AND TRUTHFUL !!! (with me, at least) You MUST have both a full-body picture and a clear face picture to show me on email.



I will show you my face on email. Terms of compensation will be discussed in private. Please contact me at: xrm0909 {at} gm.ail {d0t} c0m

Torture, gang rape, execution style killings -- human rights groups are using the term "ethnic cleansing" to describe the brutality in Burma. Already more than 120,000 Rohingya have been forced to flee, many to makeshift camps near the border, while others have fled in boats only to drown, starve, or be shot at by coastguards from neighboring countries. Reports show that violence is escalating -- earlier this year President Thein Sein declared a state of emergency after another round of deadly attacks, and it's just a matter of time until there is a large scale massacre.

Was shooting 2 in patterns at 500 meters. Former Marine sniper, ammo never misfired or jammed. Was like being back in field again. Ammo hits hard, high velocity. At 300 meters exploded watermelons into mush, 4 rounds took practice dummy's head off like butter. The 62 light armor went through body armor at 250 meters and kept going. Be careful with 62 and do not shoot at steel targets unless you only want to use target once. Have old box car in field; at 600 meters shot through and through and stopped in tree another 200 meters down range. this ammo fun to shoot but have a back stop.

If you feel your telephone number is being used for harassment, contact your phone company to report the situation. If you receive calls that threaten your property or personal safety, you may also report the incident to your local law enforcement agency.

Indonesia is ground zero for palm oil plantations. It is the planet's leading producer of crude palm oil: 23.5 million tons of CPO produced on 7.8 million hectares of land in 2011.This massive production of palm oil--a cheap commodity crop with an unfailing growth rate on global markets -- is a leading cause of deforestation in Indonesia, and is a constant and growing threat to local communities by polluting water and soil.

Subject: To share my life with a man...

Hi! Do you dream about your beautiful bride? I am a sociable, cheerful and open person. I like to prove yourself gradually. I am calm, well-balanced and do not get depressed. I am ambitious woman. But most importantly my dignity as a woman is my beauty.

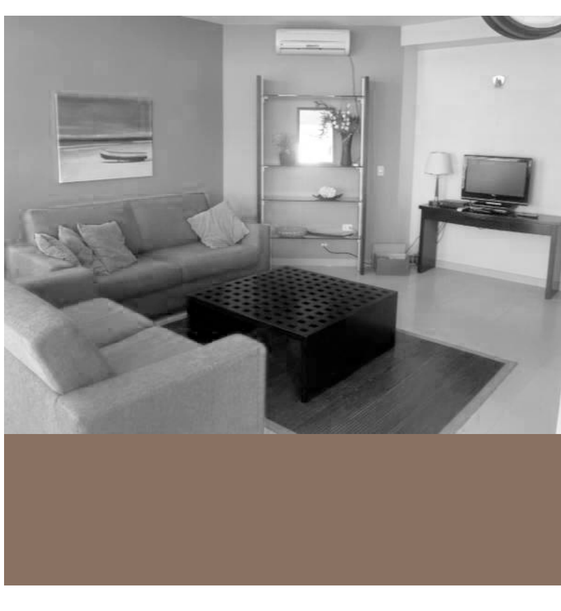
I can speak about anything but I am also a good listener. I like sport, traveling, cooking, communication with friends. Do not try to look perfect, I need a real man. Let's get to know eachother better? Here's my profile http://hbzqcjremhucz.ucoz.de/ Regards.

Hi there,

My name is Aisha daughter of Shukri Ghanem. We fled from Libya last year following the uprising against Col Muammar Gaddafi.

My father's death is no longer news but my mother's deteriorating health made me want to do this despite the fact that I barely know you. I believe in my late father's philosophy: "risk many things in life; but not life itself". I believe in taking business risk with strangers mainly to escape the spotlight and I hope you can do this for my family.

I have a rather unusual proposition having found you on the internet in desperation and I am here to surprise you with this extreme offer you can easily afford. It's something that I believe could provide a great deal of profit to you if you give me a moment of your time. I would like to propose a joint venture with you because we are looking at investment opportunities in your area and we need a local presence to carry out our plans. Everything depends on you and ultimately how self-motivated you are.



A camera has paused on three young, beautiful brown-skinned ladies. The director adjusts some controls, and a close shot of the trio fills the main viewer. They're wearing tight dresses in vibrant green, teal, and blue, arranged in a line from pretty to prettier to prettiest. Blue, who has been snacking on potato chips, now sucks the crumbs from her fingers. Peters pumps a fist and hoots encouragement.

Patricia Vazquez, an Art + Social Practice MFA student, was selected as the first place winner and will receive a $5,500 cash prize. Jordan Hoagbin, a sophomore studying graphic design, will receive the $4,000 second place prize.

The jury commended the quality and breadth of Vazquez's submission, which included painting, video, and live events. Gomez: work addresses social issues with sensitivity and courage, focusing on personal, particular stories to examine the larger human condition. One of her pieces was a two-year video project in which the graduate student chronicled the life of an immigrant mother and her relationship with three children she left with family in Mexico. Jurors commended Gomez for thoughtfully engaging with complex topics while providing participants with ways to engage with one another as fully emotional, political, and social beings.

The St. Francis Xavier Memorial Church is the cathedral of Kagoshima and is located in downtown Kagoshima. It was opened in 1999 to mark the 450th anniversary of his arrival in Japan. It replaced an earlier church built to mark the 400th anniversary. Just across the street is a memorial buiot using stones from an earlier church. Unusual for japan it has a nice big pipe organ.

Did you know that trees give back? Each year, a 20-inch Scotch pine reduces carbon dioxide by 376 pounds, intercepts 2,206 gallons of rainwater, lowers your electric bill by 5% and raises your property value by $49.

A group of 133 developing nations have walked out of a key part of the climate talks in Warsaw, Poland, amidst a conflict over how countries who have historically emitted the most greenhouse gases should be held financially responsible for some of the damage caused by extreme weather in nations with low carbon emissions. The United States, Australia, Canada and other industrialized countries are pushing for the issue to be put off until after the 2015 climate talks.

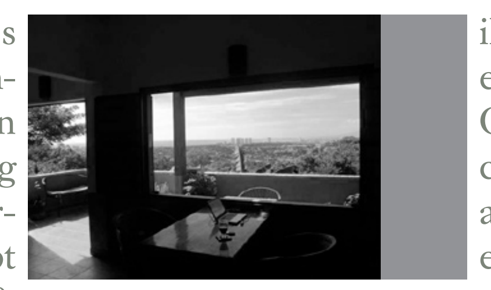
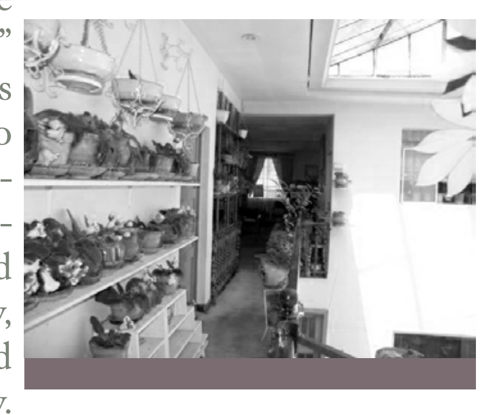
This Day in History, 1984

A cloud of deadly poison gas leaked from the Union Carbide’s pesticide plant in Bhopal, India, killing over 4,000 people.



Staymates were watching television in their living room as Georgia’s sick mother, Darlene, slept upstairs at 7 p.m. on Dec. 7, 2010. They suddenly heard a loud explosion and saw bright lights, “as if grenades were going off,” the complaint states. Pittsburgh Police SWAT officers wearing helmets and facemasks then broke and “stormed through” the front and back doors of the home, according to the complaint. Those officers allegedly never identified themselves, pointed assault rifles at the family, shouted obscenities and destroyed their property. Although the team purportedly sought to arrest William for quarreling with a drunk, off-duty police officer at a local veterans club early that morning, the family says that their “terrorization” continued for another 45 minutes after William was apprehended. The officers threw to the floor, kicked and handcuffed Georgeia, her stepfather and her adult son Billy. They also injured Mark’s shoulder and forced Billy to lie face down in broken glass, according to the complaint. When Georgeia pleaded repeatedly that she had young children in the house, at least one officer allegedly stated, “You think you can get one of ours, and we won’t get one of yours?” The family says the police proceeded to drag Georgeia’s 10-year-old son Trentino violently from the bathtub, injuring his ankles. They allegedly then made the boy stand naked at gunpoint next to his 4-year-old sister Briseis. Officers have continued to harass and threaten the family since the raid, telling them “that’s how we do things here” and that they should move out of Pittsburgh, the complaint states. The family asserts claims for violations of their Fourth and 14th amendment rights and seeks $50,000 in damages.



Amnesty International and the Lagos-based Social and Economic Rights Action Center (SERAC) released a report today documenting evictions carried out in the first phase of a U.S. $200 million World Bank-funded redevelopment project. Homes were demolished during the evictions, which occurred in February.

The Citadel will be a small planned community of 3,500 - 7,000 families of patriotic Americans who voluntarily choose to live together in accordance with Thomas Jefferson’s ideal of Rightful Liberty: Rightful liberty is unobstructed action according to our will within limits drawn around us by the equal rights of others.

In essence, Rightful Liberty means that neighbors keep their noses out of other neighbors’ business, that neighbors live and let live.

Marxists, Socialists, Liberals, and Establishment Republicans may find that living within our Citadel Community is incompatible with their existing ideology and preferred lifestyles.

Our children will be educated instead of indoctrinated.

Bluefin population levels have declined by nearly two thirds since the 1970s. Remaining bluefin face constant threats from thousands of fishing boats, using miles of hooks and large encircling nets. This trend toward extinction can only be reversed in one way -- by ending overfishing now.

In this century, the institutional momentum of the NSA -- now fueled by a $10.8 billion annual budget -- has been moving so fast in such a wrong direction that the agency seems unsalvageable from the standpoint of civil liberties. Its core is lethal to democracy.

Dear Brother/Sister, Has anything ever bothered you in life? Do you have any problem you need to solve?

Welcome to the world of miracles and wonders, there are supernatural treasure and power to liberate mankind from all afflictions. The great corporate myth-making machine has been hard at work of late, attempting to create the false impression that US corporations are increasingly uncompetitive with their foreign rivals due to the fact they pay much higher corporate taxes in the US and abroad than their capitalist counterparts. But that is one of the great myths perpetrated by corporate apologists, pundits and their politician friends. The myth is high in the pantheon of conscious falsifications their marketing machines feed the American public, right up there along with such other false notions that `business tax cuts create jobs’, `free trade benefits everyone’, `income inequality is due to a worker’s own low productivity contribution’, `overpaid public workers are the cause of states’ budget deficits’, or that `social security and medicare are going broke’.

When French President Nicolas Sarkozy was defeated in 2012, soon thereafter French police actually went into his private residence searching for an alleged $50,000 in illicit campaign contributions from the LOreale heiress. Seriously? $50,000 in a presidential campaign? Our presidential campaigns cost a billion dollars each! $50,000 is a rounding error, not a basis for police action. Why, George W. Bush took millions from arms manufacturers and then ginned up a war for them, and the police haven’t been anywhere near his house.

Mercenary / Soldier of Fortune (Africa / USA) Curious if there is anybody in Africa willing to aid the Somalian / Ethiopian or otherwise African pirates in a joint effort with Mubarak / Ahmadinejad / Kony / et. al / to invest in a few (many) cargo container ships to fill with Humvees and the weapons of war, stealth that bitch into some American harbors with some sort of front / alleged business, then roll out with cargo ships of platoons of African soldiers and steadly wage a war against the domestic homeland of America. They do take cargo ships form Iran/ Egypt/ many other places each and every day and night. Doing this under the cover of darkness could prove itself successful. America works like a game of “King of the Hill” the citizens and average people are only willing to defend their own land. The police are under-armed compared to the African Rebels/ Soldiers, and the Military is occupied with foreign war. Harbors are too sensitive and vulnerable of an economic staging point to be bombed without crippling the economy. Seeing how most harbors are adjacent to major port towns.

Many museums in Europe and America are facing a financial crisis and from recent reports, it would not be unreasonable to assume that they may be tempted to sell, loan, transfer, or exchange African artefacts they are illegally holding, such as the Benin bronzes without anybody taking much notice.

Tommie Smith and his teammate raised their black-gloved fists in a salute while keeping their heads bowed. That silent gesture was televised live from Mexico City Olympics around the world. Tommie thought it was purposeful, thoughtful and respectful, while it made a quiet statement about America’s unfulfilled promises to minorities, to women, to those in poverty and suffering in the land of plenty.

“We Are All Aboard the Pequod” -- Herman Melville’s “Moby Dick” is a portrait of the American character, and like the crew of Ahab’s ship we are complicit in self-annihilation.

We have allowed ourselves to embrace an ideology which, at its core, states that all governance is about maximizing corporate profit at the expense of the citizenry. For what do we have structures of government, for what do we have institutions of state, if not to hold up all the citizenry, and especially the most vulnerable?

The Occupy movement has been systematically crushed, and the government is working to prevent such movements from rising again. The left bears fault for how weak mass movements have become in the country.

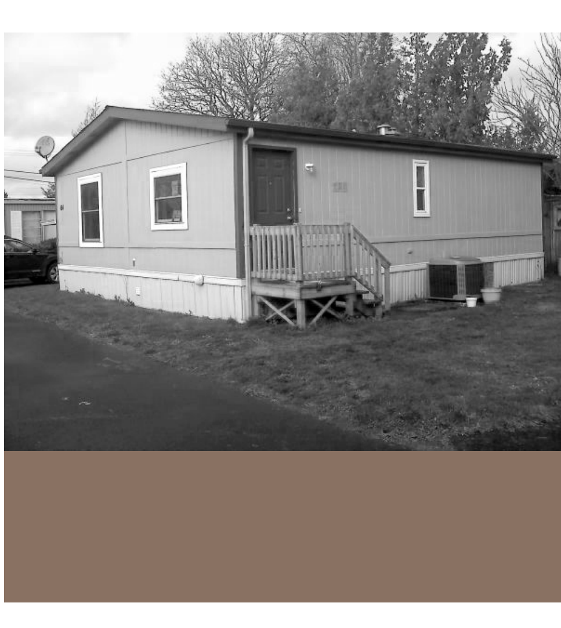
Right to housing and sanitation

35.^^(1) The State must take reasonable measures within its available resources to achieve the progressive realisation of the right of every person to accessible and adequate housing and sanitation. (2) In applying any right under this section, if the State claims that it does not have the resources to implement the right, it is the responsibility of the State to show that the resources are not available.

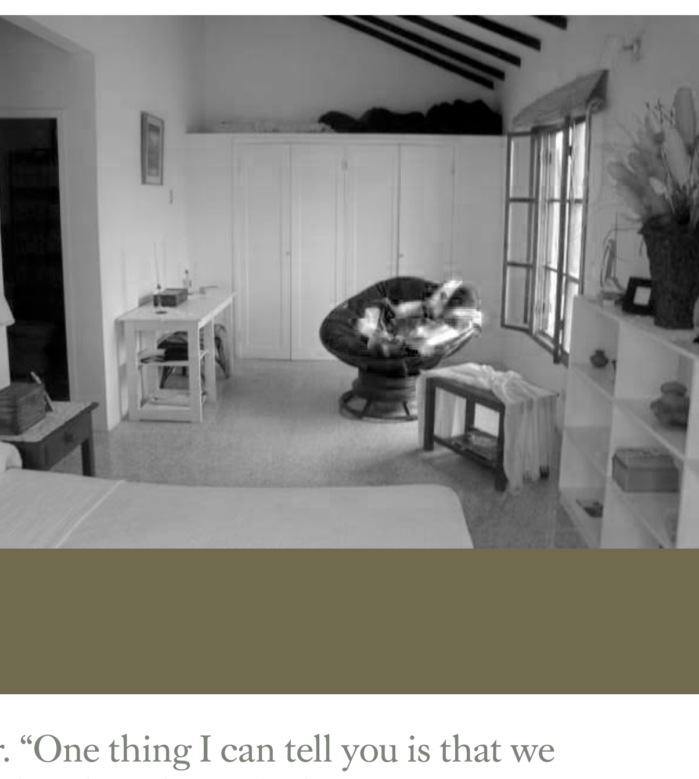
Right to adequate food and water



36.^^(1) The State must take reasonable measures within its available resources to achieve the progressive realisation of the right of every person to be free from hunger, to have adequate food of acceptable quality and to clean and safe water in adequate quantities. (2) In applying any right under this section, if the State claims that it does not have the resources to implement the right, it is the responsibility of the State to show that the resources are not available.

Right to social security schemes

37.^^(1) The State must take reasonable measures within its available resources to achieve the progressive realisation of the right of every person to social security schemes, whether private or public, for their support in times of need, including the right to such support from public resources if they are unable to support themselves and their dependants. (2) In applying any right under this section, if the State claims that it does not have the resources to implement the right, it is the responsibility of the State to show that the resources are not available.



“People are often torn when they start, but later they go numb and just do the job,” said one former censor, who left because he felt the career prospects were poor. “One thing I can tell you is that we are worked very hard and paid very little.”

Revolutionary Greetings my People:

I can imagine that when the founding Brothers founded the Black Panther in Oakland, CA in 1966, they could not have envisioned the mayhem, murder, hatred and the false imprisonment of our sisters, brothers by the evil empire, with hundreds who are languishing in the nation's many solitary confinement units to this day.

I can also imagine that they could not have foreseen all of the accomplishments that were made as well. The Breakfast Program, Medicare, the influence that we have had and still have on revolutionary groups around the world and a legacy that is so vibrate that only a Panther can tell its history.

Remember George W. Bush? He was the president who told the nation and world that the United States of America does not torture our prisoners. Did I miss something last week or did I actually hear FBI director-designate James Comey admit to Senator Al Franken that prisoners at Gitmo were shackled in a standing position for seven days at a stretch to deprive them of sleep. TDCJ does things a bit different. They have what's called the "Intensive Cell Searches" wherein an inmate cell is searched every hour of the day and night subsequent to that offender assaulting a guard. This little program goes on for months at a time right here on the Polunsky Unit. For those of us who walk out the front door, TDCJ has "Intensive Cell Moves." For my first five years of solitary confinement in the concrete box, I was required to exchange cells with another inmate at least once every 72 hours. With more than 17 years of Solitary Confinement or Administrative Segregation now done, I graduated to cell moves once every two weeks. Why is moving around a big deal? Try moving into a different cell behind a mentally ill inmate who leaves special little treasures of poop in the cell. I have Obsessive Compulsive Disorder. That's a great combination with the poop left behind.

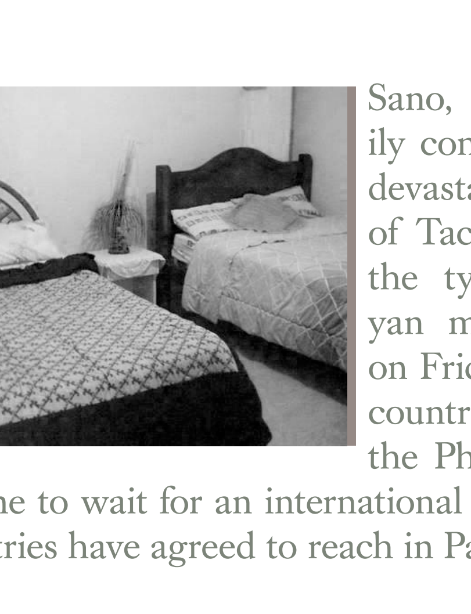
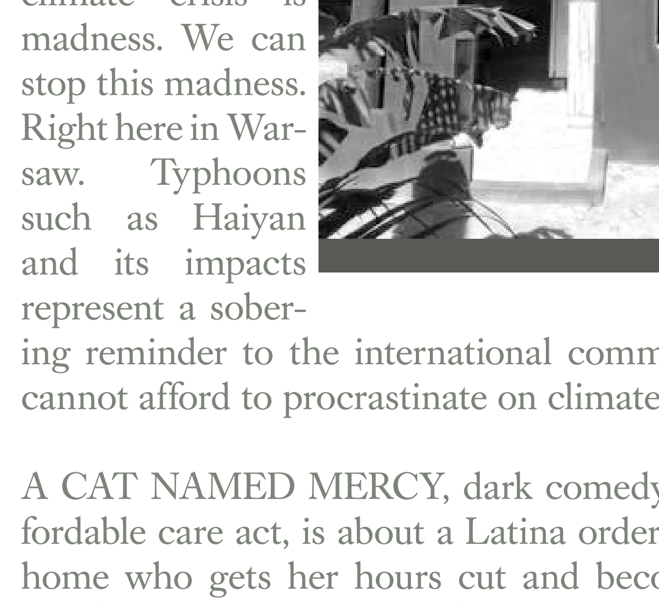
"We cannot sit and stay helpless staring at this international climate stalemate. It is now time to take action. We need an emergency climate pathway," said Yeb Sano, head of the government's delegation to the UN climate talks, in an article for the Guardian, in which he challenged climate sceptics to "get off their ivory towers" to see the impacts of climate change firsthand.

Sano, whose family comes from the devastated town of Tacloban where the typhoon Haiyan made landfall on Friday, said that countries such as the Philippines did not have time to wait for an international climate deal, which countries have agreed to reach in Paris in 2015.



"What my country is going through as a result of this extreme climate event is madness," he told delagates from 190 countries, as UN climate negotiations get underway for a fortnight today in Warsaw. "The climate crisis is madness. We can stop this madness. Right here in Warsaw. Typhoons such as Haiyan and its impacts represent a sobering reminder to the international community that we cannot afford to procrastinate on climate action...

A CAT NAMED MERCY, dark comedy about the affordable care act, is about a Latina orderly at a nursing home who gets her hours cut and becomes an uninsured part-time employee who is in desperate need of an emergency operation. With the help of a cat she named Mercy she is divinely called to do the unthinkable to save her life.



The 24,000-year-old remains of a young boy from the Siberian village of Malata have added a new root to the family tree of indigenous Americans. While some of the New World's native ancestry clearly traces back to east Asia, the Malata boy's genome -- the oldest known of any modern human -- shows that up to one-third of that ancestry can be traced back to Europe.

The results show that people related to western Eurasians had spread further east than anyone had suspected, and lived in Siberia during the coldest parts of the last Ice Age.

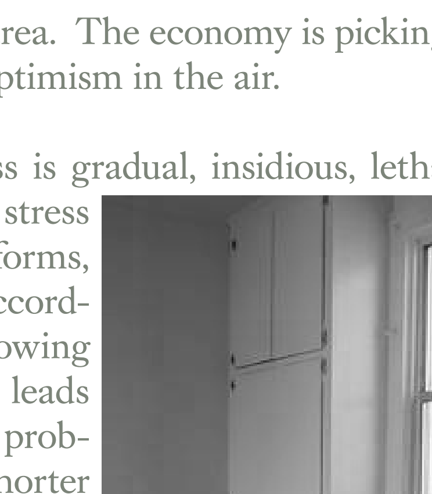
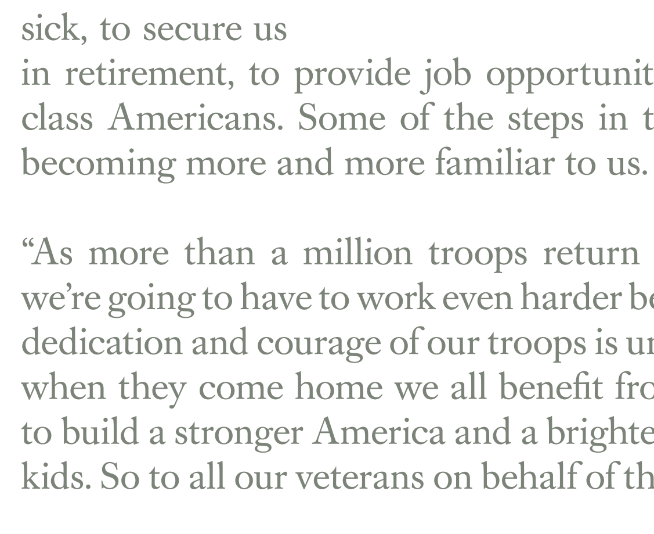
Another year has almost past and weather wise it has been one of the best the Delta has had. A hot summer preceded by a balmy spring and a beautiful and long lasting fall have been great for boating and general fun in the area. The economy is picking up and there is a general optimism in the air.

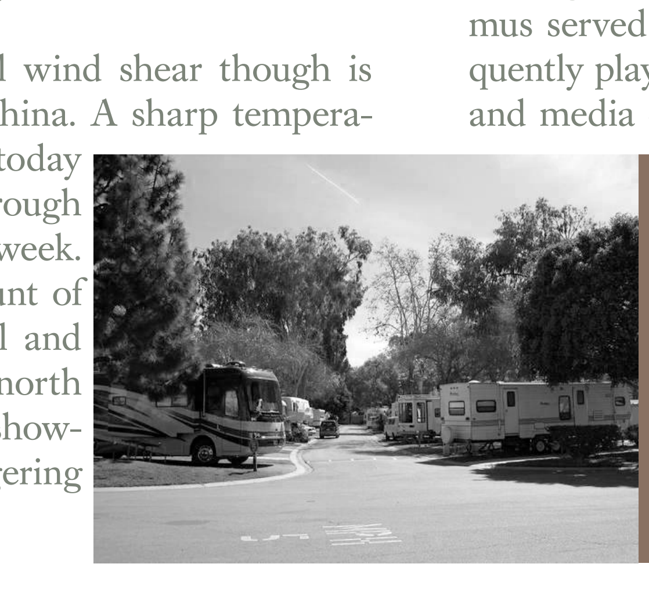


The process is gradual, insidious, lethal. It starts with financial stress in various forms, and then, according to growing evidence, leads to health problems and shorter lives.

Financial stress is brought upon us by the profit motive of capitalism, which offers little incentive to feed hungry children, to treat the sick, to secure us in retirement, to provide job opportunities for middle-class Americans. Some of the steps in the process are becoming more and more familiar to us.



"As more than a million troops return to civilian life, we're going to have to work even harder because the skill, dedication and courage of our troops is unmatched. And when they come home we all benefit from their efforts to build a stronger America and a brighter future for our kids. So to all our veterans on behalf of the entire nation, thank you for everything you've done and continue to do for our country. As your commander in chief I am proud of your service and grateful for your sacrifice. And as long as I'm president I will make it my mission to make sure that America has your back--not just on one day or one weekend, but 365 days per year."



A storm that feeds on vertical wind shear though is one developing over Central China. A sharp temperature contrast over the country today is fueling a strong fall storm through the early part of the coming week. Eastern China will feel the brunt of this at first with heavy rainfall and snow up to 10-15cm in the north east. South Korea will see rain showers on Monday but Tuesday lingering precip could shift over to Snow.

By Monday late morning in to early afternoon Okinawa will see thunderstorm activity and rain showers as the cold front moves over the islands. And by Monday afternoon Tokyo will see foul weather. Another big factor of this storm will be the cold air it will be ushering in later on in the week. Many people in Japan and Korea will see their first below freezing temperatures of the season.

December is the time of lighted boat parades and Holiday parties all over the Delta and San Francisco Bay area. If you have a boat the parades are fun and a great way to show off your decorating creativity. All of the parades offer prizes and in some cases cash prizes. There are generally parties after the parades which are a great place to meet new people and relax with your friends. Sometimes there are good adventures associated with the parades. One time at the Community Action Marin parade at the San Rafael Yacht Club we were heading up the canal and observed what appeared to be a huge unmarked dock in the middle of the parade route. It ended up that it was a barge participating in the parade that had lost all electrical power and was just a big dark looming object in the channel. Another time at the same parade we were riding on my friend's extensively decorated and lit up classic Stephens Yacht and one whole side of the boat went dark. Several of us were scrambling around and talking about taking the generator apart to figure out what the problem was when a high school girl aboard held up a plug and asked what it was for. When she plugged it back in the lights came back on, voila.

The collection of laws and restrictions that regulate people categorized as "sex offenders" has been punctuated by names such as Megan, Jessica and Adam. These are the names of children, all victims of heinous crimes that sparked high-profile campaigns aimed at creating "get tough on crime" legislation. Today you can go online to your state's Megan's Law website, where all convicted sex offenders are required to register, and probably find clusters of red dots on the map of your neighborhood, each dot representing an individual convicted of a sex crime.

In California, approximately one of every 375 adults is a registered sex offender. While some states have considered adopting public registries for other crimes--domestic violence, drug dealing, murder--so far sex offenders comprise the only class of criminals who are deemed to warrant this special treatment, despite scant evidence that it is effective at reducing sexual assault. Registries are designed to protect children from "stranger danger," a largely mythical threat belied by the fact that only three percent of sexual abuse and six percent of child murders are committed by strangers.

It is now only a matter of weeks, or days perhaps, before Herman Wallace dies of the liver cancer that is ravaging his body. He will likely die in prison, at age 72, without proper medical treatment, after spending nearly four decades in a 6' by 9' cell. He was placed in solitary confinement after being convicted in January 1974 of killing a prison guard at Louisiana's notorious Angola prison. Wallace is black. The guard was white, and so was each member of the southern jury that convicted him.

The case against Wallace was pitifully weak when it was presented to that jury; some of the constitutional infirmities at trial were almost farcical. But over the years the courts of that state, along with Congress and the federal courts, have constructed a mighty wall protecting that jury's verdict. Layer upon layer of procedural protections has been built around it so that today, as Wallace nears death, it is easy to see the vast gulf that exists here between law and justice.

Dear Beneficiary,

My name is Dr.Kingsley C.Moghalu,the deputy governor CBN.I was mandated by the President Federal Republic in conjunction with the Federal Executive Council (FEC), the Senate Committee on Foreign Debts Reconciliation and Implementation Panel on Contract/inheritance/compensation funds to complete all the unpaid Contract/inheritance/lottery fund. You are required as a matter of urgency to reconfirm your information including your name, phone number and your address for verification and immediate payment within 24 hours.

To this effect, the sum of TEN MILLION, SEVEN HUNDRED THOUSAND UNITED STATES DOLLARS (US$10.7m) has been approved for you. I wish to inform you that all matters relating to the release of this payment is now under my control and supervision. This development has become necessary due to the activities of unpatriotic government/CBN officials and impostors who keep on frustrating every effort to settle our clients by making requests for unauthorized fees and levies from them.

Amidst poorly enforced credit regulation and high levels of financial illiteracy, millions are ensnared in debt traps, and with half the credit active population holding an impaired credit rating, many are forced to look to loan sharks. Aware of their customers' desperate situations and often exploiting their illiteracy, local lenders " known as mashonisas (Zulu for "one who buries you under")" typically charge interest rates of 30-60%. While we have become accustomed, since the days of Joe McCarthy, to ideological witch hunts, it seems that Sartre and Camus served as test cases for the sort of thing that frequently plays out in overheated Congressional hearings and media denunciations: agents with furrowed brows and little philosophical training desperately trying to work out whether such and such abstruse academic is part of a grand conspiracy to undermine truth, justice, the American Way, etc.. Sartre appeared early on the anti-Communist radar, though, ironically, he did so as a plant of
